Cold, Black Holiday

Why did the storm hit the region so hard? The B.C. Hydro spokesman said it was natural that weak branches, old lines and decaying trees would fall with the first heavy snowfall of the winter. Because it was such a heavy blanket of snow, more of them fell.

Only the fact that most workers were having a holiday and staying home precluded a gigantic snarl across the 40-mile arc of the capital region. Even so, many aspects of life were affected. B.C. Ferries service slowed down because electrically-operated tugs stopped at Swartz Bay, and loading ramps had to be manually operated.

Cars backed up and the service ran about one ferry behind regular schedule for much of the day.

Several fractured limbs were set at Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's hospitals, and one non-fatal heart attack was reported among the city's sidewalk shovellers.

PRONES OUT
Some telephone lines between Victoria and Nanaimo went down, and service was curtailed. However, B.C. Telephones was practically unscathed by comparison with B.C. Hydro.

Airline service from Victoria International Airport halted completely, even though the main runway at Patricia Bay was cleared during the day. Vancouver's runways were clogged, a spokesman explained.

TEA BREWED
Central Saanich was without power for about six hours. Lights went on just before 5 p.m.

One family joined its neighbors and warmed themselves with tea boiled over an acetylene torch.

West Saanich lost power at 12:20 p.m., when the wiser family had already cooked lunch. It was restored at 4:45 p.m.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cafe Society danced the Waltz and frug in the discotheques here Monday night and, between numbers, motored the passing of an old friend — the Pappermint Lounge, where the twist was developed into a national dance craze.

Many Cold, Cheerless

its regular run, but because of some quirk in the weather did not call in at Galiano.

Late last night there had been no electricity on Galiano for more than 15 hours. The power went at 6:30 a.m. Monday and was not expected to be restored until today.

There was 18 inches of snow on most of Galiano last night.

SHARING EVERYTHING
Colonist reporter Mary Backlund said "The islanders are sharing everything."

"One man has his tractor out plowing side roads."

Island traffic moved slowly, when it moved at all.

The Dayliner train running up the Island was pushing snow all the way, and late reports indicated it had been stopped at Parksville.

For dairy farmers without power, Christmas was a swollen udder.

Most farmers with large herds depend on electrically-run milking machines.

With power out, many Cow-chan Valley farmers listened to the sounds of amnesia from their cows, and waited for the resumption of service.

For many residents in the area south of Campbell River, Christmas was a time of cooking two turkeys . . . one for the household and one for the neighbor without power.

In the Campbell River area 18 inches of snow fell Christmas eve, another foot was dumped on the area Monday.

Residents in Tofino were without power for several hours Monday. Many homes in the village are all-electric and meals were delayed.

SIXTEEN INCHES
There were 16 inches of snow on the ground at Nanaimo Monday night.

Radio Station CHUB was knocked off the air.

Cedar and Gabriola Island residents were without power much of the day.

Power was out at Wellington and Hammond Bay.

Your Good Health

Over-Eating in Childhood Establishes Unhealthy Pattern

By JOSEPH MOLNER

Dear Dr. Molner: My 2½-year-old daughter weighs 45 pounds and is 30 inches tall. She still takes a bottle of juice at nap and bedtime. Is she dangerously overweight? She eats only an average amount but likes fattening foods better than vegetables. Should I have a thyroid test made? — MRS. S.V.

She is very substantially overweight. Whether this is "dangerously" so depends on what one means by danger. There may not be any immediate threat to her health, but there is real danger that she is establishing an eating pattern that will keep her fat all her life, and, according to statistics, will shorten her life. Eating habits start in babyhood.

FOOD TOO RICH

If you are right in saying that she eats "only an average amount," then the answer to her weight must be that too high a proportion of her food is too rich in calories for her needs.

It seems to me that the answer is obvious. See that she gets her fruits and vegetables FIRST. If she rebels, don't make an issue of it. Just stop and wait until next meal.

Second, substitute lower-calorie foods for some of the things she now eats, particularly desserts. A cookie and some applesauce, for example, are better than cake with frosting. Simple gelatine desserts are better than puddings.

Third, no snacks between meals. Nibbling can knock an otherwise satisfactory diet into a cooked hat. Most decidedly, no candy.

WHY MORE?

Fourth, you mention that she has a bottle of juice at nap and bedtime. Citrus or tomato juice once or twice a day is a fine source of Vitamin C, but why give her more when it's bedtime?

Fifth, no, I wouldn't suggest thyroid tests on the basis of weight alone, until you've seen what adjustment of her eating habits will do.

Dear Dr. Molner: The toes and heel of each foot are numb and hurt to bend. And it is getting worse. I am male, 45, 300 pounds, solid, very healthy otherwise. I began taking a drug to curb my drinking about the time the numbness set in. — M.G.T.

I would suspect that your weight as well as the drug could be a factor. Try trimming your weight — but also tell your doctor about this numbness. He may want to change the dosage of your drug.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am a 14-year-old girl and have not yet started to mature. I have a figure like an eight-year-old. Is there any way I can increase my bustline? I mean, speed up the development. My measurements are 32-34-31. — R.M.K.

Lots of girls are slow in developing, and often the late-blooming ones have the best figures later on. You can have our sympathy right now, because you are impatient and worried, but you shouldn't be and there's nothing you can or ought to do to make Nature hurry.

Just one thought, though: Are you accumulating some excess weight? If so, watch your diet to the extent of eating all you need of the basic foods, but go easy on surplus calories. And get plenty of exercise. Your figure will shape up. Just give it time. In fact your measurements are in the proper ratio for a good figure.

Lucien Captures News Editors' Poll

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
Lucien Rivard's fantastic activities were voted the top Canadian story of the year by news editors participating in a Canadian Press poll.

The doings of the chunky 50-year-old dope smuggler from Montreal — jailbreak, recapture, trial and attendant political touches — easily beat out the that a ministerial executive assistant offered a bribe to ease Rivard's way out of jail.

GRANDUC

4. The Feb. 18 avalanche at the British Columbia mining camp of Granduc in which 26 men died when snow and ice thundered down a mountainside.
5. The mystery crash of an explosion-torn Canadian Pacific Airlines plane over central British Columbia July 8 with a toll of 52 lives and a persisting question mark as to whether it was accident or mass murder.
6. The death of 28 persons in a natural gas explosion that ripped open an apartment block in the Montreal suburb of Ville LaSalle March 1.

QUEBEC ARSON

Behind these came the unfolding story of Quebec's arson-bankruptcy-murder links and the great northeastern North America power blackout of Nov. 9, the latter also just failing to make the first six in world news.

WORLD

1. Sir Winston Churchill's death.
2. Soviet walk in space and Los Angeles race riots.
3. Rhodesia's assumption of independence from Great Britain on Nov. 11.
4. The escalation of the war in Viet Nam.
5. Pope Paul's historic visit to the United Nations Oct. 4 with his plea for peace before the General Assembly.

POWER OUT

Right behind came history's greatest power blackout, traced eventually to a relay on the Ontario side of the Niagara Falls hydro installation, and the India-Pakistan dispute over Kashmir, where Canadian airmen are serving with a United Nations mission.

Editors of Associated Press newspapers and broadcasting stations in the U.S. put the Viet November federal general election in the annual survey. The Dorion inquiry into the political side of the Rivard case rated third on its own.

Rivard

SPACE WALK

On the world scene, the No. 1 story in Canada was the death of Sir Winston Churchill on Jan. 21, which edged a pair tied for second — the March 18 "walk" in space by a Russian cosmonaut and the Los Angeles race riots in August.

The selections were made by editors representing CP member newspapers and radio and television stations served by Broadcast News, a CP subsidiary. They were asked to pick the top six in Canadian and world events.

THIRD TIME

The judicial inquiry by Mr. Justice Frederic Dore into the way federal authorities handled a bribery allegation in the Rivard affair was the only story in either category that carried over from 1964 to stay among the leaders — third place in the Canadian list each time.

Rivard personally did not make the 1964 selections, but this year his spectacular March 2 jailbreak at Montreal and subsequent stories kept him continually on the front pages until his sentencing Nov. 12 in Texas to 20 years for directing a ring smuggling huge quantities of heroin into the United States. Here are the selections:

CANADIAN

1. Lucien Rivard's continuing story.
2. The Nov. 9 federal election in which the Liberals narrowly failed, for a second time, to get a parliamentary majority.
3. The Dorion inquiry with its June 29 report critical of the way then justice minister Guy Favreau handled the allegation

DERIVS OF VICTORIA

Underloaded

ALTHOUGH hospital financing was rejected by the ratepayers as one of the functions of a regional joint services board for the southern end of Vancouver Island, the board will come into being with three other matters in its purview. These are the application of a fireworks bylaw, which once done is finished; the continuation of a sewer study already in progress on a shared-cost basis; and the acquisition of regional parks—for which purpose Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Central Saanich have already been constituted as a park district.

The question undoubtedly in many minds thus is whether the regional, "mini-metro" board is really worth establishing at this time; if a regional parks board would not suffice.

It will be recalled, however, that the aim of Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell was not to overload this new vehicle of district co-operation at the start. When hospital financing was added to the list of proposed functions, regional planning was dropped.

Overall planning to guide the development of the whole community from Sooke to the tip of the Saanich Peninsula, however, would be an ideal responsibility of a regional administration, possibly the most important it could have.

It would make good sense therefore if this activity were restored to the list and if necessary, voted upon, before the issuance of the letters patent.

Doors Still Open

HIS HONOR the Lieutenant-Governor, Major-General G. R. Pearkes, VC, has shown generosity and forbearance in his assurance to University of Victoria undergraduates that they still are welcome at Government House.

He has invited them to return next year to sing carols in the Christmas season in spite of unpleasantness this year and last.

It would be entirely unjust to heap recriminations upon the student body for the indignities offered His Honor by the humiliation of one of his staff, for all but a very few of the visitors behaved in an orderly and mannerly fashion. But the exceptions spoiled the evening. And if a less forgiving gentleman were in residence as Her Majesty's representative in Government House it could very well have happened that the gates would have been closed against a return of the college carol singers.

Although His Honor has chosen to overlook the regrettable behavior of some of his young visitors, the general public will not be so lenient. Certainly, pranks and boisterousness can be attributed to youthful exuberance and looked upon with indulgence. But at Government House it is expected that even celebrants will conduct themselves with decorum and not offend the dignity of their host.

It is reasonable to expect that the university students have the good sense and gumption to police their own ranks.

The situation should never have been allowed to develop to the point where the university authorities have to seek out the culprits for discipline. The students themselves should have controlled the rowdy element in their party.

To the Rescue

A REPORT from Ottawa on the subject indicates that the defence department, hard up for male recruits to the armed forces, is thinking of turning to women to rescue it from its predicament. There are roughly 1,200 female members of the three services at present, but the idea is to enlarge this number by several thousands.

Such is its own commentary on the situation brought about by Mr. Hellyer's retrenchment policies. It is easy to save money by chopping off heads as he has been doing, but when the result is lack of sufficient manpower to carry on the military tasks at hand it becomes a poor economy.

A basic reason for the shortage of male recruits is that the Hellyer philosophy has by integration and diminution of numbers dimmed the career prospects of young men inclined to military service, and this at a time when never in the past did Canada have overseas commitments that compelled a substantial personnel to meet these obligations.

Nearly 50,000 women donned a uniform and performed with diligence during the war when it was a case of all hands to the plow, but it is a poor show in peacetime when the defence department must turn to the gentler sex for military support.

There is the ungallant hint also in this Ottawa report that the good-looking will not be among those preferred if this move is decided upon, it being suggested that these are quickly led to the altar because of their charms.

So what? One in fairness might inquire. Many servicemen get married and carry on nevertheless and why not servicewomen? Nowadays the quid pro quo is well established in the matter of male and female employees in all kinds of professions and business concerns.

But if in desperation it comes to pass that the defence chiefs have to plead with women to enlist, will they also be integrated? Apart from marriage, that is.

Speed Unlimited

SOME USEFUL purpose undoubtedly is served by continuing assaults upon the land speed record, currently held by an American, Craig Breedlove, who piloted a machine driven by jet engine at something over 600 miles an hour.

But somehow the romance has gone out of the challenge since these records are achieved by vehicles no longer driven by wheels. The wheels serve only to guide the speeding missile.

For missile it assuredly is.

Donald Campbell, son of Sir Malcolm, the man who consistently broke world records on land and water with his famous Bluebird cars and boats, has dubbed his new vehicle "The Missile." He will drive it, he believes, at a speed in excess of 800 miles an hour.

Over a measured mile he will travel just twice as fast as he did when he set the last world record for machines driven through their wheels.

It would seem there is no limit to ground speeds that can be attained, providing the vehicle can be guided—and provided it does not lift off.

Scientifically these experiments may be important. But they seem far removed from what was once an exciting sport.

End of Another Honeymoon

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonel Ottawa Bureau

AS honeymoons usually do with all but the luckiest people, Prime Minister Pearson's with the national press has come to an end.

As these love affairs go, it was a warm one.

And it lasted an unusually long time, going on three years.

The reporters, press, radio and television, who from the outset treated the prime minister as a prime minister should be treated—objectively and dispassionately—have not changed much.

They regarded him all along as the prime source of national news, found him always courteous, pleasant, usually cooperative and, surprisingly often, even helpful. It was that way for them back when he came to power in the spring of 1963, and nothing really has changed.

But those who kept their heads—and hearts—were not overcome by the prime minister's uncommonly high-powered charm, were few.

In the main they were those who had known him back through his years as a Liberal Opposition leader, as external affairs minister, Prime Minister, St. Laurent's government and as the departmental deputy running the Canadian foreign service through much of Prime Minister King's regime. Perhaps old-fashioned, they spoke of and to him quite properly as Mr. Pearson.

And so they have no reason to weep.

The heartbreak has come for the many who, swept off their feet by his talent for captivation, all but idolized him.

They knew him, some intimately, all affectionately, as Mike.

They would do almost anything for him and often did. When he was Liberal Opposition leader they compared him to Prime Minister Diefenbaker and thought they saw, by contrast, what they regarded as the sheer wonder of him.

But somehow they forgot that John Diefenbaker, too, once enjoyed a honeymoon with the same national press.

Then, under the punishing lash of prime ministerial responsibility, he had become

"Mr. Mean," standing in the way of their "Mr. Wonderful."

And so, during the Conservative cabinet crisis, when John Diefenbaker was being toppled as much, or perhaps more by the party's own palace revolutionaries as by the opposition, some of them set up the cry: "To work, men! We have a government to destroy," as they turned to their typewriters.

Mr. Diefenbaker came to fear, dislike and finally despise them. Now the full circle seems to have been turned.

And mellowed, Dief has become something of a lovable old curmudgeon, at least a "character," usually regarded as admirable.

And look what the prime minister has done.

Banned the newsmen from the East Block corridors when cabinet's at work.

Not Mike, they cry, almost unbelieving, and charge him with hobbling the freedom of the press.

This, of course, is nonsense. For the prime minister has been making himself available for questioning at press conferences after cabinet.

That way, you get to hear what's said, understand it, ask for clarification if necessary, and have time and space to make legible notes.

The East Block corridor scurrilous began with former Prime Minister St. Laurent. He didn't like them, either, but wasn't tough enough to call a halt.

Mackenzie King was. He ordered them ended, and that was that.

Dief as prime minister at first enjoyed them, "quickly found them troublesome and often trouble-causing, but able, in his blunt prairie lawyer fashion, to more than hold his own, rode reluctantly along with them."

To Prime Minister Pearson they were an irritation, uncomfortable and unwelcome.

In the pushing and shoving and shouting, amid the crush of reporters, cameramen and the tangle of television cables, he could be, and sometimes was, misunderstood.

The corridor was blue with smoke and the floor a filth of cigarette butts.

The end came for him when he found himself in what he barked, his temper for once showing through, was "a football game."

So the corridor was closed, with the RCMP East Block guards instructed to keep it that way, and the question-and-answer, post-cabinet sessions with the prime minister switched from the noisy, dirty, overcrowded hall to a quiet, orderly, wired-for-sound conference room.

As a reporterial hand who must have wasted thousands of hours standing and waiting in that corridor, morning after morning, week through month, nearly 20 years, this correspondent testifies it's great.

And a plus, not a minus in press freedom.

In a Neutral, Pro-Soviet Cause

A Touch of Comedy at Shilo

By SHAWN HERRON

THERE is a quality of magic about the very word Shilo. Away down beyond Nashville, Shilo church was fought among the trees and the bush and swamps, but the place was peaceful then and it is peaceful now.

The Shilo of Holy Writ was also a place of war and tranquility. The children of Israel built a sanctuary where the first phase of their conquest of the land of Canaan came to an end. There in time they kept the Ark of the Covenant. So Shilo is not a place where things of no moment happen.

At Shilo, Manitoba, we have the tranquility and the power of our strong right arm. It is all in keeping with the history and mystery of the word.

Whether there has been much comedy associated with the name I cannot say, but if there is much I have not found it until now.

On a Thursday recently, the lackeys of the capitalist press were taken in an army bus that did great good to our sluggish livers, to meet the Germans and see their equipment. I went willingly but with an uneasy stomach to see those uniforms again. And I saw them with unease. But that it was mere unease and not hostility, I owe to Mr. Don Currie, provincial organizer of the Communist party. Not since the Spanish civil war have I been able to feel grateful to the Communist party for anything.

Mr. Currie got to within a few miles of Shilo a little while before the army bus carrying us lackeys got there. He and his companions were not interested in publicity he said. They just happened to be there, not the day before or the day after we were due; not long before we were due, and not at all after we were gone. They were "instant demonstrators." Now you see them, now you don't. They were suffering for the Potsdam agreement just long enough for coverage. Every man has the freedom to freeze to death for the Potsdam agreement or at least to get cold ears in a non-partisan anti-Western, pro-Soviet, neutral, peace-loving cause.

This instant demonstration was amusing enough in itself, but the fun didn't really begin till the chief demonstrator began to strip off his partisan accoutrements and prepare to get on the bus that had carried the lackeys of the capitalist press thus far towards Shilo.

Now he demonstrates, now he doesn't. Now he is not a partisan neutral demonstrator but a correspondent of the Canadian Tribune, the organ of the Communist party in Canada. Out from among the shivering cold; in among the toasting lackeys. He seemed quite at home.

He seemed no less at home tucking in at the luncheon of the department of national defence gave us. The navy soup was evidence that integration is working well and the crust around the baked sausage suggests that even on an artillery base somebody on the strength knew a bit about armor plating. None of that fazed Mr. Currie. He ate away like a guest at a wedding who has forgotten that a few minutes before the cake was cut he stood outside and abused the bride.

The best was yet to be, for

A horse called The Tippler has reached the retirement age of 14 in Montreal after winning $68,000 in his racing career as a pacer.

"You know," said his owner, "his record is all the more remarkable when you consider that in his later years he went 78 straight races without scoring a win."

That is the sort of patience people should have with humans, too.

Some U.S. Dissidents

Abusing Free Speech

By WILLIAM S. WHITE
from Washington

FROM beyond the grave Adlai Stevenson has given the lie to a badly fostered innuendo that he was privately opposed to the United States policy of honest military resistance to the Communist invasion of South Vietnam.

Adlai Stevenson 3rd, son of the late American ambassador to the United Nations, who also was twice Democratic presidential candidate, has now published documentary proof that such suggestions are as without foundation in fact as they are irresponsible in effect.

It is proof so decisive as to be quite beyond further challenge from the two very different groups which have acted, knowingly and unknowingly, in discredit the position of the United States in Vietnam. One of these sets has moved in simple malice, on the notion that any stick is good enough to beat a dog with—in this case the dog of an American policy they detest. The other set involves a few earnest and genuine friends of the late ambassador who honestly supposed that he was preparing to run out in private on the very policy he had long defended in public.

As is usual in such wretched episodes, however, the record is being put right too late. It is too late to save the legitimate interests of the United States from wholly unjustified damage. It is too late to save the memory of Adlai Stevenson, himself, from implications—well meant and unintended in some cases, harshly unearring in others—that he was not really loyal to public positions he himself had repeatedly taken.

Perhaps, however, it is not too late to draw a lesson from this experience. It points a salutary warning finger to the danger and the dreadful wrongness of attempting to quote dead men in the service, conscious or not, of designs to discredit, in so petty and subterranean a way, any national policy whatever. All this is starkly so in the case of a policy, such as that toward Vietnam, which is demonstrably not partisan and which is surely entitled to be seen as big in purpose, if nothing else.

Many of those who oppose American actions in Vietnam, indeed, are making it more and more difficult to conduct an adult and civilized debate. Endlessly, they clamor for "the right to dissent"—as though they were not already exercising that right to its screeching, howling full. Endlessly, they suggest that they, the dissidents, are being suppressed, repressed, by some crushing conspiracy of "reactionaries."

Endlessly, too, they imply

there is something not altogether decent about a Communist demonstrator being fed inside by the people against whom he is demonstrating outside, but does this extend to their cocktail parties?

After we had seen the Germans in their machines, we were driven back to the mess to enjoy—if the word has any relevance—their hospitality. The lackey capitalist press is doing this all the time. Anybody who wants a good word from us just gives us enough to drink and away we go. Any good Communist demonstrator will tell you that.

That is what makes this occasion so novel in the history of hospitality. There was Mr. Currie, Communist organizer, demonstrator, at the Germans' cocktail party. From sandwich board to bacon goodies and gin and orange before your very eyes.

For one small example, this columnist's mail brings letters declaring him to be "an animal," or sometimes more specifically defined beast of prey, for backing the war in Vietnam. Now, no one is asking in consequence for a Purple Heart, or crying out for the instant services of the medic and the chaplain. But those who believe in the policy in Vietnam no longer less than in the great tradition of free speech are entitled to ask who is it who is really outraging that tradition. Is it those who openly state their views in support of the war? Or is it those who will stoop to any dodge to ambush that policy?

Our Readers' Views

YOUR very interesting and informative editorial of Dec. 14, Voire of Minority, is exactly what can happen to Canada if we pursue this bilingual policy created by the Liberal government. There most certainly would never have been a United States of America unless there had been one language.

Facts are facts. Great Britain created Canada and Confederation consolidated it. No matter how it was done, it was done, and we start from there. Today Canada is a sovereign state, a member of the Commonwealth of our own freewill. English is the universal language, just as much as the styling of clothes has rapidly become universal. Nations realize that unless they accept this they will be left behind in trade and commerce which is the life-blood of a nation.

Immigrants coming to Canada know they must accept the laws, language and customs of the land of their adoption. On an average, third generation of any newcomers to Canada are Canadian in every respect. Second and third generation of British stock are no more British than the second and third generation of any other country. We are all Canadians in outlook. We are the Canadian nation therefore why must we as Canadians, be forced to suffer French being forced on us to satisfy a small bicultural minority in Quebec?

We must act as a nation, think as a nation and see that we have a government that does. It would be of great interest if we could be told what this bilingual commission will cost the country.

Closed Shop

On Sunday, Dec. 12, there was a report in the Colonist that the CBC were not being allowed to present original productions unless the author was a member of ACTRA.

This closed shop attitude of so many of the unions is iniquitous, and I hope the CBC will get much support in its fight against this form of dictatorship.

It has been shown, as in Sweden for example, that where unions are popular and responsible groups, they do not have to resort to coercion in order to keep their membership.

The gun-at-your-head "join or no work" used by both labor and professional unions to enforce discipline is a very serious condition in our national life. It is high time that the right of an individual to work without the necessity of belonging to any particular group, be it religious, ethnic, political or labor, be recognized by statute if necessary.

In this particular case it is even more serious in that it

To be considered for publication in whole or in part, letters must be on subjects of general interest and if signed with pen-name must be accompanied by writer's name and address. Preference will be given to those that are brief.

Imposes censorship. No matter how important the message to be conveyed, no matter how educational it may be, if ACTRA decides the producer may not be a member, then ACTRA says the work shall not go on the air. Surely this is a highly undesirable state of affairs.

Bilingualism

I have noted with interest preliminary results of a study of the "bilingual" problem by still another "royal commission." Incidentally the cost to the ratepayers will be scores of thousands of dollars, but I respectfully submit my own independent "report" without charge.

On two occasions during the past summer I made the return trip by motor car between Victoria and Ottawa. Stops at many motels and filling stations were involved, but on only one occasion—at White River—did I hear a word of French spoken.

So what?

Hospital Finance

May I be permitted to reply to E.G.'s letter of several days ago—his query was whether the 2 per cent sales tax produced enough to pay for present hospital expenses and all future construction needs here as well as in the rest of the province.

The answer is clearly yes. According to Provincial Accounts for the year 1965, during which BCHHS will spend approximately $72 million, the 2 per cent will bring in almost $50 million. In addition, Ottawa will provide $36,000,000 as its share of the Dominion-provincial hospital plan. My arithmetic shows a surplus of some $14 million.

In the same way there was a surplus of approximately $10 million in 1964.

Victoria and surrounding communities represent approximately 10 per cent of B.C.'s population. If, therefore, 10 per cent of these surpluses were turned over now there would be no problem. There is every reason to believe that the sales tax will continue to produce similar or greater amounts each year. And remember that Premier Bennett has clearly told us we have now a total provincial surplus running to $65 million or more. The money is there, the need is clear—but our elected provincial representatives (the servants of the people?) now try to ram through an unwarranted two-mill tax. That's why I remain a PUZZLED TAXPAYER.

B.C.'s Boom

Our dynamic premier assures us that the economy of our province is booming and no one can contest such a statement. However he could have added that all Canada is booming and how much of the boom in B.C. is attributable to the Social Credit government is a matter of opinion.

I feel that the premier could have added the following items, which are not to the credit of the government which he heads:

(1) The tragic lack of accommodation in our hospitals in spite of the large surplus which is one of the boasts of the premier.

(2) We continue to pay the exorbitant rates charged by the B.C. Telephone Company, which are the highest in Canada on the basis of centres of population. Alberta and Manitoba, headed by Social Credit and Conservative premiers, respectively, operate provincial telephone systems which provide very adequate service with much lower rates.

(3) Each year we are subjected to an increase in car insurance rates and no action is taken. Saskatchewan operates a provincial plan which provides coverage at much lower rates.

(4) No adequate provision is provided for the countless cases of chronic illness. The recent concession of the minister of health is but a drop in the bucket, and the vast majority of chronic cases have to enter private hospitals and nursing homes which charge very high rates.

(5) The social welfare services in the province are most inadequate.

(6) The senior citizens continue to exist on a pittance. The premier seems to forget that these citizens laid the foundations of the Canada we now enjoy.

I accept the fact that booming business provides jobs for our citizens, but the premier should not be carried away with the large developments in our province and forget the human sufferings of a large section of the population. I include telephone rates and car insurance premiums as two great afflictions loaded on the shoulders of the large majority of our people.

Head-On Collision Fatal for Five

HANEY (CP)—Five persons returning home from visiting were killed Christmas night in a head-on collision on the icy highway in the Fraser Valley near here.

Police said all were dead by the time help arrived.

Dead are: Mrs. Addie Bennett, 53; her son William, 17; daughter Sandra, 13; mother Mrs. Estella Agnes Murdoch, 83; and Mrs. Murdoch's brother, Neelham Dwyer, 5.

Mrs. Bennett's husband, Herman, their son Gordon, seven, were unhurt.

Ivan Monrad Peterson, lone occupant of the other car, was severely injured.

GOING HOME

Police said the Bennett family were travelling in a station wagon on the Lougheed Highway near this community 30 miles east of Vancouver. They were going home to nearby Hammond.

One of the vehicles attempted to pass another and lost control. Seven others were killed in traffic mishaps on the mainland during the weekend. Two died in a fire.

Phillip Ghostkeeper and Mrs. John Carille, both of Prince George, were killed when their car was in collision with a car occupied by five teenagers.

KEY ROAD

James Melvin MacArthur, 65, of Nakusp was killed when his car plunged off a Columbia River ferry slip 12 miles south of Revelstoke.

Robert Allan Godfrey, 22, of Vancouver, died after his car went out of control on an icy path of the Trans-Canada Highway near Langley and crashed.

Wynard Baylis, 79, of Delta was killed in a two-car collision near his home and Allan Lee Folsam of Surrey died after his car left the icy Pacific Highway.

Cornelius Unruh, 80, of Matsqui died today of injuries suffered when hit by a car as he crossed a street in Abbotsford in the Fraser Valley Christmas Eve.

Louis Dan, 58, and his son Edward, 27, died Christmas Eve when fire destroyed their home on the Alkali Lake Indian Reserve near Williams Lake in the central interior.

Quebec Leads Grim List

Fires and Highways Exact Holiday Toll

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 67 persons died—46 of the main traffic accidents—during the Christmas holiday weekend which began at 6 p.m. local times Friday and ended at midnight Monday night.

A Canadian Press survey shows 46 traffic deaths, one drowning, 16 dead in fires and four deaths in miscellaneous accidents.

The Canadian Highway Safety Council predicted 60 traffic deaths for the festive season, three more than in 1964.

QUEBEC LEADS

A record 130 persons were killed in 1962 during the five-day holiday period. Eighty-four died during a four-day weekend in 1961, 31 over two days in 1963 and 76 during the 84-hour period last year.

Quebec led the highway traffic toll with 15. One died from asphyxiation in a car and another fell down stairs.

FIRE DEATHS

In Ontario, 10 died on the highways and six in fires. Five died in a fire at Berkeley and a man was killed in a Toronto fire. A woman froze to death after a fall outdoors.

Manitoba and the Yukon reported three fire deaths each, while Newfoundland and Saskatchewan reported one each. Saskatchewan also had four traffic fatalities. Alberta and New Brunswick reported two traffic deaths each. One person drowned in Nova Scotia.

Prince Edward Island remained fatality free.

The survey does not include natural or industrial deaths, known suicides or slayings.

Road Toll Declines In Britain

LONDON (Reuters)—Road deaths in Britain during the first three days of the four-day Christmas holiday totalled 55 compared with 71 in the same period last year, the transport ministry reported Monday night.

The number of seriously injured also was down, to 752 compared with 798.

British motoring organizations said Monday when the heaviest traffic of the holiday will be on Britain's roads, will provide the real test.

'Black Christmas' in U.S.

Holiday Death Toll Beats Viet Nam War

By United Press International

The United States set a "Black Christmas" record of 721 traffic fatalities during the three-day Christmas holiday—more persons than had died over any other holiday period on record.

The final total was greater than the American death toll of two months of the bloodiest fighting of the war in South Viet Nam. It was barely 100 less than the total of American deaths in action since the start of the Vietnamese conflict.

The United Press International count of fatalities during the 78-hour period from 6 p.m. on Thursday until midnight Sunday: traffic 721, fires 61, planes 5, miscellaneous 64, total 851.

Late reports of fatalities sent the death count zooming past the previous all-time holiday record of 706 traffic deaths set during the 1956 four-day holiday. This year's holiday period was 24 hours shorter.

The 1956 holiday had been called the "Black Christmas" because of its record holiday toll. That title now belongs to this year's Christmas weekend.

By comparison, 716 Americans died in South Viet Nam from Oct. 18, this year to Dec. 20. Since Jan. 1, 1961, until Dec. 20, 1,546 Americans have died in action in South Viet Nam—only 104 more than the weekend's traffic toll.

Company Denies Sabotage

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Power returned to greater Buenos Aires Monday after a massive blackout in the Argentine city. A power failure on Sunday stalled trains, trolley buses, subways, water pumps and elevators.

A power company spokesman, dismissing the possibility of sabotage, said the trouble was due to three simultaneous defects on high-tension lines and in a transformer plant.

Cable Car Fall Kills Six

French Ski Holiday Turns to Disaster

CLERMONT-FERRAND, France (UPI)—Magistrates and police Monday launched an official inquiry into a Christmas Day mountain disaster in which a swinging aerial cable car burst open and spilled 23 vacationers on to rocks and snow beneath, killing six and injuring 12.

Authorities planned a full reconstruction of the accident—one of the worst in recent French mountaineering history.

Swirling fog and clouds still blanketing 5,694-foot Puy de Sancy in the Monte Dore range of central France hampered detailed investigations. Officials said it might hold up the reconstruction.

All the victims were French—most of them teen-age members of an Orleans ski club.

Three of the injured at the Hotel Dieu Hospital here were reported Monday still in serious condition.

BURST OPEN

The 60-passenger cable car was about 120 feet from the top of the cone-shaped peak when the electric current went off, bringing the car to a violent halt.

Passengers and their stacked skis were flung against the front of the car, which burst open with an explosion that could be heard miles around and 23 persons were spilled on to the snow-covered mountainside below.

Major Disaster Feared

Volcanoes Shake Japan

TOKYO (UPI)—Japan, in the middle of the World's greatest volcano belt, is being threatened almost daily by rolling tremors. Some say a major disaster may be in the offing.

The Central Meteorological Agency, which keeps tabs on quakes occurring in Japan and the World, says the frequency of shocks registered so far this year has been "unusual."

Seismologists say there is normally an average of 1,000 quakes strong enough to be felt by ordinary people registered in Japan in a year.

But the citizens of Matsushiro Town in Nagano prefecture have been plagued by recurrent earth tremors since August.

The seismologists at Matsushiro—a small central Japanese town surrounded by mountains which were to have sheltered the Imperial headquarters in the last days of the Second World War—recorded more than 1,000 quakes a day for three consecutive days in November alone.

Many of these quakes registered three to four on the Japanese scale of seven.

The quakes were strong enough to crack the walls of school buildings and shattered windows of some houses. The gymnasium of the primary school was tilted and put out of use.

The museum at Matsushiro has evacuated its treasures, including a group of 1,000-year-old Buddhas to Tokyo.

Earthquakes have also been registered in increasing numbers in other parts of Japan.

Torishima Island, situated about 400 miles south of Tokyo in the Pacific Ocean, started having tremors in mid-November, and its volcano erupted in early this month.

evacuated its 52-man weather observation team from the island as a precautionary measure.

A series of quakes also rocked Kozu Island, south of Oshima about 70 miles south of Tokyo.

In addition to quakes, some of Japan's volcanic mountains and earthquakes are not pre-activity in recent months. Mt. Mihara and Oshima, also in central Kyushu, Japan's southernmost major island, and Mt. Sakura-Jima in southern Kyushu, have been spewing smoke and hurling rocks.

Some seismologists wonder whether these volcanic activities and earthquakes are not pre-also began showing signs of ludes to a major disaster.

Exchange Stays Sane Despite Mining Boom

Bennett Words Heeded

VANCOUVER (CP)—Just over a year ago British Columbia Premier W. A. C. Bennett opened the new $500,000 quarters of the Vancouver Stock Exchange.

He urged brokers to be cautious and scrupulous in their dealings because the province was experiencing a boom, with its attendant promotional and speculative dangers.

CAME THROUGH

About 11 months and one drill hole later the timeliness of his warning became apparent. As the year came to an end it was evident that the exchange and the government's securities officials came through well.

What was a good year became an exciting one Nov. 1 when the greatest share boom in the history of the exchange exploded on the floor.

U.S. Firm To Salvage Newspapers

POMONA, Calif. (AP)—Garden State Paper Company of New Jersey is planning to acquire a 100,000-ton plant to produce 100,000 tons of newspapers a year from salvage newspapers.

The firm says it has developed a de-linking process that converts old papers into usable newsprint at a saving to news publishers.

The firm operates a similar plant in New Jersey serving 70 newspapers.

Highway Spending To Zoom

OTTAWA (CP)—Spending on Canadian roads will total a record $1,575,000,000 in 1966, up from $1,472,000,000 this year, the Canadian Good Roads Association predicts.

Managing Director C. W. Gilchrist says in a year-end statement that despite the increased construction it will be a struggle for the provinces to keep pace with the ever-growing number of motor vehicles.

Iron Ore Shipments Show Drop

OTTAWA (CP)—Shipments of iron ore by Canadian producers totalled 3,963,335 tons in October, a drop of 3.5 per cent from the 4,138,109 tons shipped in October of last year, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported.

January-October shipments of 32,458,627 tons were about one per cent above the 32,174,761 tons moved in the same period of 1964.

End-of-October stocks held by producers were 3,838,412 tons, down 13.3 per cent from year-earlier levels.

Firm Buys Rail Stock

BOSTON (AP)—The Amoskeag Co. has acquired a substantial interest in the Maine Central Railroad, it was announced Monday by Frederic C. Dumas, Jr., president of Amoskeag, a holding company controlled by his family.

The acquisition is about 20 per cent of the Maine Central common stock. The railway has 120,000 shares outstanding.

Weakness Spreads

NEW YORK (AP)—An early rally by aerospace issues, airlines and other recent gainers fizzled and the stock market ended with a substantial loss.

Volume slumped down from 5,970,000 shares from 6,880,000 Thursday. Monday's was the lightest trading since Nov. 11 when 5,440,000 shares changed hands.

Early weakness in a few blue chips spread to others and the downward trend was sharpening in the final half-hour.

Grain

CHICAGO (AP)—New crop wheat sold at season highs in the great wheat market Monday. The grain of more than a cent a bushel but all other contracts held within small fractions either way of previous closes most of the time.

Brokers said the support for July and September contracts appeared to have come largely through commission firms for speculative accounts. It attracted a little demand for old crops months and rye.

Fancy That!

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail.

Moonlighting is on the increase. It is estimated that seven per cent of all American workers now hold not one but two jobs. . . . The great advantage of 20th century leisure is that it leaves a fellow free to work harder for the things he can't afford.

Strange claims to fame: Marguerite de Valois, wife of Henry of Navarre, the medieval French king, bragged that she regularly washed her hands at least twice a week—whether or not they needed it.

Pound for pound, wood is one of the strongest known building materials. . . . Its fibres are finer than human hair, but they have a strength exceeding that of ordinary steel.

If you don't gulp at least 114 aspirins a year, you may not be having your fair share of the world's headaches.

Move to Oust Monarchy

Beatrix' Engagement Rouses Ire of Dutch Republicans

THE HAGUE (Reuters)—A movement aimed at restoring the republic has been organized in The Netherlands because of dissatisfaction with the monarchy, one of its founders said Monday.

Arend Dunewind, a member of the New Republican party's executive group, said in a radio interview that branches will be established in western cities and candidates will be put up for the next municipal and provincial elections.

Anti-monarchical feeling was aroused earlier this year when Crown Princess Beatrix became engaged to Claus von Amsberg, a West German diplomat who was once a member of the Hitler Youth and served with the German forces during the Second World War.

The royal house also was the centre of a storm of criticism last year when Princess Beatrix's younger sister, Princess Irene, became a Roman Catholic and married Prince Hugo of Bourbon-Parma, a pretender to the Spanish throne, without the Dutch government's permission. She waived her rights of succession.

The Netherlands was a republic from 1588 to 1813. It officially became a monarchy under the House of Orange in 1815.

Aussies Keep Davis Cup

From AP, UPI

SYDNEY, Australia — Australia retained the tennis world's top prize, the Davis Cup, today, when Tony Roche and John Newcombe, beat Spain's Manuel Santana and Jose Luis Arilla, 6-3, 4-6, 7-5, 6-2, in doubles.

The win gave Australia an unbreakable 3-0 lead in the best-of-five series.

The Australian pair, considered second-stringers, merely outtaught the tenacious Spaniards in 214-degree heat that baked White Stadium's centre court.

The young Australians played brilliantly at the net, concentrating on Arilla, making his first Davis Cup appearance.

PHG LEAD

The defending champion Aussies entered the match with a big 2-0 advantage in the series. Top-ranked Roy Emerson beat Juan Gisbert and second-ranked Fred Stolle whipped Santana in singles encounters Monday.

Australia now has won 13 of the 20 Davis Cup matches held since the end of the Second World War.

FIRST MATCH

Stolle won the first match, handing the brilliant Spaniard his first loss in the long march to the final. Santana was particularly sharp as Spain upset the United States last summer.

Stolle dropped the first two sets but rallied for a 10-12, 3-6, 6-1, 6-4, 7-5 victory.

LEARN WIN

Emerson was more workmanlike against young Gisbert. It took only three sets and

With Uplands Golf Club course obviously unplayable, officials regrettably cancelled the tournament for the second straight year, after it had been staged 10 years without interruption.

"There was no need to try to warn anyone that the competition was off," said Harry Young, chairman of the Victoria District Golf Committee, which was handling the tournament. "Most people could not have got themselves out of their garages by that time."

There was some discussion in the morning on the possibility of a new tournament date. However it was finally decided that the tournament is in spirit essentially a Christmas event and would lose significance and interest if played later.

The competition was then cancelled for the year.

Golfers whose entries were accepted will have their money returned during the next few days.

Female Athlete of Year

Skater Nation's Top Star

By CANADIAN PRESS
Petra Burka, 19-year-old figure skating star, is Canada's top female athlete for the second year in a row. Miss Burka, a brown-haired, blue-eyed beauty, born in Holland and who makes her home in Toronto, amassed 363 points in the 31st annual Canadian Press year-end poll among 141 sports editors and sportscasters. The results were announced today.

Miss Burka last March became the second Canadian woman in history to win the world figure skating championship when she captured the title in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Miss Burka drew 102 first-place votes, almost three times as many as the rest of the candidates combined. She finished 148 points ahead of skater Nancy Greene of Roseland, B.C., who placed second, and 203 points ahead of golfer Gail Harvey of Toronto, who was third.

It also marked the second successive year Miss Harvey finished third.

There was little doubt in the minds of the selectors who the best three female athletes were, judging by the point totals computed on a 3-1 basis.

Golfer Jocelyne Bourassa of Trois-Rivieres, Que., was a distant fourth with 14 points while another golfer, Marlene Stewart Strait of Toronto, was fifth with six points.

Boston Belter Collects Penalties

Green Back with Bruising Style

Tough Ted Green is healthy again, which is bad news to the rest of the National Hockey League.

The Boston Belter rejoined the Bruins Saturday and set up three goals as they ended a 12-game winless streak with a 4-2 victory over New York Rangers. Sunday's rematch in New York ended 6-4 for the Rangers, but again Green left his mark.

In the two games, Green collected a total of 47 minutes in penalties. The rugged defenceman, who had been out of the lineup with an undisclosed illness for a month, drew 36 minutes Saturday night alone, one minute short of the all-time National Hockey League record set by Boston's Reg Fleming when he played for Chicago five years ago.

On Saturday, Green drew three minors and a major Saturday while making the plays for goals by Dean Prentice, Tom Williams and rookie Bill Goldsworthy. On Sunday he collected three minors, two majors and two misconducts, but muscle wasn't enough against the Rangers, who got a hat trick from Bob Nevin and a goal and four assists from Don Marshall.

It was a weekend of home-and-blasted a shot at Terry Sawchuk midway in the third period Sunday and Chico Maki was there to knock in the rebound to give Hawks the tie. Red Kelly had scored for Leafs in the second period.

Hull came out of the weekend with a seven-point lead over teammate Stan Mikita in the individual point race. Hull has 44 points and also leads in goals.

Leafs Salvage One Point From Christmas Games

Victoria Maple Leafs still lead the Western Hockey League by four points and are practically out of sight of every club with the exception of Portland but they have had their troubles since Ed Litzenberger was returned to Rochester Americans and Claude Labrosse was lent to the American Hockey League club.

In the six games the Leafs have played without Litzenberger and Labrosse, they have lost four, tied one and won one and go into tomorrow night's game here against San Francisco Seals winless in their last four.

Leafs managed only one point in two games over the holiday weekend. They had their unbeaten home-ice skater snapped at 15 games Saturday night by taking a 5-1 licking from Seattle Totems and got their point in Portland Sunday with a 2-2 against the Buckaroos.

Saturday before about 2,400 customers, the Leafs came up with what was probably their weakest Memorial Arena performance of the season in losing for the second time in a row and the third time this year to the Totems.

Persistent forechecking by the Totems, failure to cover up on rebounds and an off night by the Leafs were the main reasons the Leafs were downed by the Totems. A little bad luck here and there also was a factor.

Totems took a 3-0 lead in the first period and the Leafs didn't have the ability to recover Saturday.

Bill Dineen and Guyle Fielder got the first and third goals by putting away rebounds and the second came on a three-one break caused when a careless pass was knocked down at the Seattle blue line.

Lou Jankowski's 300th WHL goal cut the margin to 3-1 in the second period but after a promising third-period start, the Leafs gradually disintegrated in the last 15 minutes.

Earl Heiskala got away on the left boards and caught the short side at 5:58 and Dineen polished off the scoring at 14:07 after the puck had been battled around in the Victoria zone for several minutes.

Just the same, the Leafs needed only a mite more luck and a bit less of goalkeeper Ernie Kately to have made a battle of it.

Andy Heberton, who with Bob Barlow and Jankowski was the pick of the Victoria forwards, hit a post with the score 2-0 and Jankowski steered one into an upright in the first minute of the third period when it was no worse than 3-1.

In between, Wakely made particularly good stops on Barlow (twice), Sheaver, Jankowski, Marretta and Heberton.

MUCH BETTER

The Leafs were much better on Sunday in holding off the Buckaroos on their home ice. They were never ahead but they came from behind twice and they got the big moves from Al Miller when the Buckaroos posed serious threats late in the third period and again in overtime.

Fred and Sandy Husel, who also played a strong game on defence, looked after the scoring Sunday.

SECOND GOAL

Sandy got the 1-1 goal, his second scoring shot of the season, and Fred the 2-2 goal with a long blast from the point just after the Leafs got a power-play chance in the second period.

McNeill Points Leader

Vancouver Canucks' Billy McNeill took over the leadership of the Western Hockey League's points race Monday night, scoring once and getting two assists as Canucks shut out San Francisco Seals, 4-0, in Vancouver.

McNeill now has 13 goals and 28 assists for 41 points, one more than Victoria Maple Leafs' Milan Marotta.

Los Angeles Blades' Leo Larbine scored twice Sunday as Blades bowed, 6-5, to Seattle, and now has 20 goals, league high in that department. Howie Hughes of Vancouver and Victoria's Bob Barlow both have 19.

Saturday the Blades were beaten, 7-3, by Vancouver, and Portland defeated San Francisco, 5-2.

Russia Edges Sweden

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—The Soviet Union, defending world champions, held off a determined Swedish team and captured a 4-3 victory in an international hockey tournament Monday night.

The Swedes were a different team from the one that dropped an 8-3 opener Sunday night to Czechoslovakia. They were more aggressive on defence and showed much better poise.

Every time the U.S.S.R. took a lead, Sweden came back to tie it. The Swedes had two shots in the last minute of the game but couldn't get the final tie.

After two nights of the six-night round-robin tournament, the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia are tied. The Soviets go against a strong Canadian team tonight. It will be Canada's first game.

Remainder of the schedule: Wednesday—Sweden vs Canada.

Thursday—Russia vs Czechoslovakia.

Friday—Czechoslovakia vs Canada.

Eight Rinks Plan For Island Series

They set the stage for the Vancouver Island men's curling playoff at Esquimalt Sports Centre on Sunday when two rinks from the Duncan Curling Club and one each from the Victoria and Esquimalt clubs qualified to represent the South Island.

Glen Harper and Fred Duncan of Victoria and Lyle Gordon of Esquimalt and Bob McCubbin of Nanaimo, Earl Ewert of Port Alberni, Dave Patterson of Comox and Ralph Boyd of Campbell River will meet in the double knockout Island final at Esquimalt Municipal Centre Jan. 15 and 16 to decide which two rinks will go to the Pacific Coast Curling Association final.

BOTH UNBEATEN

Tellier and Duncan were the unbeaten winners Sunday, both qualifying for the Island final with two straight victories in the "A" side of the double knockout competition.

Both started with easy victories, Tellier knocking off Gordie Carmichael, 14-6, and Duncan beating Jim Gallagher, 10-4, but it was much tougher the second try, both winning of the last end as both games went down to the last rock.

FAIR FITE

Tellier edged Gordon, 9-8, when he elected to draw against the only rock in the house, sitting near the tee line with a fair bite of the eight-foot ring on the out-turn side. He made it with about four inches to spare but not before a late "pull" had brought momentary fears.

Duncan had to score on the last four ends to get by Ed Taylor, who had started things off by knocking over Harper, 11-7.

LAST ROCK

Taylor had a 9-6 lead after nine ends with last rock on the 10th but played that end trying to count more than one and Duncan wound up with a steal of two. Duncan stole one on the 11th to tie and another on the 12th to win.

Taylor then missed his second chance to qualify in the closest game in the "B" event. Able to blank the 11th against Gordon, he started home one down with last rock—and he had a tie when he went down to throw it. He needed a good part of the eight-foot ring but was a trifle heavy, slid through, and then lost it, 6-7, on the extra end when he was a bit light trying to hide his last rock.

NO MISTAKE

Harper made no mistake after his first-round upset. He waltzed by Jim Gallagher of Allan's Curling Club, 9-2, and was in control all the way in a 7-4 win over Don Moss of Victoria.

Moss got one on the first end but Harper kept blanking until he got the chance for two on the fifth end, then added two more

Double the next two times he had last rock.		Results:

Below Zero General

Cold Hits Prairies
Week's Stay Seen

EDMONTON (CP) — Cold air which arrived in the Prairies Christmas Eve appeared set for a week-long stay today, with strengthening winds and fresh snow threatening near-blizzard conditions in south-western Saskatchewan.

Temperatures plunged to 35 below in some areas Monday night, and were expected to stay well below zero everywhere but in southern Alberta until Friday, the dominion weather office said here.

The weather brought frustrating delays to Christmas week-end travellers.

FORCED TO WAIT

Air travellers heading to Vancouver from Edmonton Monday were faced to wait as a 10-inch snowfall closed the Vancouver airport.

Extra holiday railcars put a burden on the steam-generating capacity of diesel units, resulting in delays of up to two hours for some trans-continental trains coming into Edmonton.

A CPR Dayliner ran into trouble on its Calgary-Edmonton run Monday when snow blew into its motors. It was delayed an hour and a half on the return trip.

DELAYS COMING

A CNR spokesman said delays would probably continue for the duration of the extreme cold.

Buses continued to run "pretty well on schedule," however, and the RCMP at Edmonton reported no undue problems on the highways.

SNOW PILES

The storm that piled up snow on the west coast Monday was expected to skirt the southern edge of the prairies today, bringing northwest winds of up to 20 miles an hour but not disturbing the cold air mass.

Light snow, which began falling in Alberta Monday, was to continue, with up to three inches forecast in the south, and an inch in the north.

Oregon Accident

Two Children
Still Critical

Two Victoria children are still in critical condition in an Oregon hospital following an accident Wednesday.

They are Christopher, 10, and Susan, 12, children of Dr. and Mrs. James Baker, 3014 West-dene.

Mrs. Marjorie Baker is now in a satisfactory condition and another daughter, Marie, was released from hospital. Arrangements were being made to send her to relatives in San Francisco. Dr. Baker was not injured.

STRUCK ICE

All received injuries when their van struck ice on Interstate Highway 5 near Central Point, Ore., overturned and slid into another car.

Dr. Baker, an RCAF wing commander, has served as chief of surgery at HMCS Naden since July.

Speaker Pressed Into Service

Doctors Busy
With Accidents
Christmas Night

Eleven people were injured in holiday accidents in Greater Victoria.

The worst accident was on Christmas night, when five people were sent to hospital following a two-car collision on the Patricia Bay Highway near Beaver Lake.

Mrs. Dorothy Piton, 247 Sims, suffered a fractured right hip, fractured right leg, head lacerations, abrasions, bruises and shock. She is in good condition in St. Joseph's Hospital.

BROKEN RIB

Her husband, Harold, who was the driver of one car, is in good condition in Royal Jubilee with a broken rib.

The driver of the other car, Ronald Osland, 2766 Island View, suffered a cut to his right hand.

DISCHARGED

A passenger in Mr. Osland's car, John Cook, 6272 Rudolph, received head lacerations, abrasions and bruises. Another passenger, Murray Hurst, 2437 Keating Cross Road, also received head lacerations.

Both were discharged after treatment.

COLLISION

City Assistant Fire Chief John McLennan, 2750 Roseberry, received minor injuries in an accident Christmas Day.

Mr. McLennan was driving the inhalator truck when it was in collision at Bay and Fernwood with a car driven by Lorne Ames, 1704 Myrtle.

HIT HYDRANT

The truck went out of control after the impact, mounted a curb and broke off a fire hydrant.

Cigarettes
Tell Peril

RALEIGH, N.C. (PI) — The first packs of cigarettes bearing new health warning appeared on the stands in this tobacco heartland Monday.

The warning states: "Caution: Cigarette Smoking May Be Hazardous To Your Health." Each of the words begins with a capital. The capitals are an eighth of an inch tall.

George R. Hughes, professor of Egyptology at the institute, said there is no way to tell when the story was first written.

The Coptic, early Christians, trace their roots back to about 100 A.D.

Ancient Prayer Book

Christ to Bring Cross to Last Judgment

CHICAGO (AP) — An ancient prayer book, which says Christ will bring His cross to the last judgment, has been dug up in the ruins of a monastery in Egypt.

The University of Chicago, in announcing the find, said: "It tells what appears to be an unpublished story from the oral tradition of early Christianity."

It relates that, four days before Christ's ascension to heaven, He and His apostles gathered on the Mount of Olives.

Peter said: "We desire that you will tell us concerning the mystery of the cross—why you will bring it with you on the day on which you will judge in righteousness; so that we may hear about it from you and we shall preach it to the world."

And Christ answered: "O my chosen one, Peter, and you, my brethren, you know the lies which were told against me on the cross, and the spitting at me . . . and the great contempt which was spoken against me. This is why I will bring the cross with me, so that I may reveal their same and shall put their sin upon their heads."

***

The book is divided into two parts.

The second part, the university said, presumably refers to another gathering of the apostles on the Mount of Olives before the crucifixion, at which Christ recited this hymn:

***

Rise up, rise up, O Holy Cross, And lift me, O cross, I shall mount upon you, O cross, They shall hang me upon you as a witness to them, Receive me to yourself, O cross, Amen

Do not weep, O cross But be joyful, O cross Amen.

I have put on the crown of the kingdom. . . .

George Scanlon of the university's Oriental Institute headed a party which recovered the prayer book last month in a monk's cell of an abandoned Coptic monastery near the border of Sudan.

***

Nile waters rising behind the new high dam downstream at Aswan "soon would have destroyed the thousand-year-old manuscript," the university said.

"In one of the rooms," Scanlon reported, "we discovered a complete (17 leaves) Coptic prayer book, with illustrations and decorations in red, green and black on whitish parchment."

He figured the monastery had been built in 8th or 9th century and rebuilt in the late 10th century or later.

The text was written in the Coptic language.

George R. Hughes, professor of Egyptology at the institute, said there is no way to tell when the story was first written.

***

The Coptic, early Christians, trace their roots back to about 100 A.D.

Clutch Grab Wins Game

MIAMI (UPI)—Bill Clay of Mississippi ran an intercepted pass 29 yards for a touchdown in the closing minutes on a warm Christmas evening in the Orange Bowl to send the South to a 21-14 victory over the North in the 20th annual Shrine all-star football game.

The South team was favored because it had the greatest passing combo in college history—Tulsa's quarterback Billy Anderson and end Howard Twilley—but it didn't turn out that way.

Marylebone Fights Back

ADLAIDE (Reuters)—John Murray and Barry Knight saved Britain's MCC cricketers against South Australia here Monday with a record eight-wicket stand of 164 in two hours.

At one stage MCC needed 60 runs to avoid the follow-on and had only three wickets in hand, but Murray and Knight fought back to win by 11 runs.

The partnership easily beat the previous best for an English eight-wicket pair in Australia—137 by Maurice Leyland and George Geary against Queensland in 1928-29.

Scores: South Australia 450 for seven declared and 121 for two. MCC 444.

Some Revenge for Cup Final

Leeds United Knocks Over Liverpool

LONDON (AP)—Inside-right Peter Lorimer gave Leeds United a 1-0 victory over English League soccer leader Liverpool Monday and so gained revenge for his team's 2-1 defeat by Liverpool in last season's Cup final.

Despite the defeat, Liverpool still heads the major league with 32 points followed by Burnley with 30. Manchester United with 29 and Leeds United and Tottenham Hotspur each with 27 points.

A sell-out crowd of 53,430 packed Liverpool's Anfield Road Stadium for the match.

Lorimer's vital goal came in the 14th minute. He booted the ball into the net after Liverpool goalkeeper Tom Lawrence had only partly stopped a shot from left-back Paul Reaney.

Leeds' victory moved it into fourth place in the standings—five points behind Liverpool. Leeds has played four fewer matches than the leader.

Stoke City scored three times in the last 19 minutes through the English League. Blackpool defeated Blackburn Rovers 4-2, but neither is among the first Division leaders.

Inside-forward Roy Vernon and winger Harry Burrows (2) for a 1-1 victory over second-placed Burnley.

To complete an unhappy day for the top three clubs, Manchester United managed only a 1-1 tie against West Bromwich Albion.

Celtic defeated Morton 8-1 Saturday to the Glasgow Rangers for first place in the Scottish Soccer League's First Division. Each team has 27 points.

At the same time, the Rangers were defeated by Dunfermline 2-1. Celtic has a 13-1 record and 12-3-1. Their nearest rival is Dunfermline with 10-4-2 for 24 points.

Evidence in Bishop's Crash Studied for Possible Action

MONTREAL (CP)—A spokesman for Justice Minister Claude Wagner said Monday justice department officials are examining testimony of a coroner's inquest to determine whether further proceedings will follow a car crash involving the Roman Catholic bishop of Trois-Rivières.

The coroner's jury exonerated the bishop, Most Rev. Georges Leon Pelletier, whose car and another collided head-on Dec. 13 on the Trois-Rivières bridge in which the driver of the other car, Jean-Jacques Bonin, 26, a salesman, was killed.

Mr. Wagner said in a week-end interview his department is not legally bound by a coroner's court verdict.

Asked to comment on reports that the case will be reopened, the minister said: "All are equal before the law. A bishop is no more beyond the normal course of justice than a minister is."

Bishop Pelletier testified at the inquest he did not realize until too late that in passing he was in the wrong lane.

At the inquest, District Coroner Jean-Luc Bellemare instructed the jury to decide whether Bishop Pelletier committed a criminal act or merely made a driving error.

A verdict of accidental death was returned by the jury.

Cariboo Machines Keep Running

How to Milk in Power Failure!

A farm veteran of the B.C. Cariboo offered a suggestion for dairymen whose milking machines have been knocked out by power failures: the manifold vacuum connection of a car or tractor will operate the most common machines. He said it was common practice in the north to do the milking this way. The main line of the milking machine is joined to the manifold by a length of tube with appropriate fittings, the vehicle's engine is kept running, and the vacuum adjusted on the regulator in the barn, he said.

Some regulation may also be achieved by adjusting the engine's idling speed.

Foreign-Port Holiday Not Too Miserable

By BOB PETNICK

It is the luck of the sailor more often than not to find himself away from home when Christmas Day dawns, and in most cases he grins and makes the best of it.

So it was with the crew of the Baxtergate from London now tied up at Ogden Point waiting to load grain for China.

PHILOSOPHICAL

Some are philosophical about it, like Capt. Isaac Mills, a veteran of 30 years at sea. "It's worked about even for me," he says. "Everyone would like to be home for Christmas, but if we miss Christmas we might get summer leave, and that's all right, too."

PLANS CHANGED

Originally the idea was for the Baxtergate to top up its load and be at sea for Christmas.

Freighter Crew Well Fed

mas, but there was a change of plans.

"The only difference between having Christmas in port or at sea is that you don't get robbed around in port. It's more comfortable," said Capt. Mills.

YULETIDE MENU

Meanwhile, Chief Steward George Frost, in his quarters two decks down, was putting the final touches on the Christmas menu, working on the theory that a well-fed man is happy.

Chief Steward Frost is from Tottenham, and can't remember when he has had a Christmas at home.

PLENTY FOR ALL

"There will be plenty for everybody," he said.

Here is what they ate: Creamed tomato soup, asparagus tips in Beurre fondue sauce, salmon vol-au-vent. There was roast turkey, baked ham, roast or duchess potatoes, Brussels sprouts, split carrots, Christmas pudding with rum sauce, peaches and cream, Danish blue and Cheddar cheeses with water biscuits, fresh oranges, mandarin pears, apples, assorted nuts, preserved dates, and tea or coffee.

GOOD ARTIST

Third Officer Allan Harvey did his bit to make things Christmas by decorating the menu with a Christmas theme.

"He's a pretty good artist," said Chief Steward Frost.

SNACK LATER

And just to make sure the crew didn't go hungry, chicken and fresh prawns, garden salad, potato crisps, vegetable salad, sausage rolls, mince meat, Christmas cake, fruit cocktail, ice cream, fresh fruit and tea were served three hours later. Sailing conditions have come a long way since the days of salt pork and ship's biscuits.

Thieves Make Haul of $148

Thieves took $148 from a living room desk at the home of Frank Cranton, 1234 Richardson, Sunday night.

A watch valued at $10 and some small change was stolen from a house at 1325 Rockland Sunday night. A window was broken to gain entry.

Roads Clogged

Watchers Given The Bird

Greater Victoria bird watchers are hoping there won't be another postponement of the annual bird census because of heavy snow.

The traditional Boxing Day bird tally by the Victoria Natural History Society was postponed until Sunday because of yesterday's road-clogging snowfall.

DEPEND ON CARS

"We have to depend on cars to reach and cover our areas. Monday it was virtually impossible," said organizer David Stirling.

The bird count takes place in a circle 15 miles across, from Island View Beach to Oak Bay and from Witty's Lagoon to Ten Mile Point.

TWELVE SECTORS

There are 12 sectors to cover, and each one needs an adept watcher, a recorder and a few others who are adding to their skill.

"This census is not a nature outing," the organizer explained. "It is strictly a bird count."

FINAL DATE

According to the National Audubon Society regulations, Jan. 2 is the final date for the count to be made.

Mr. Stirling said approximately 50 watchers will be taking the census.

ON TWO DAYS

"We can only hold the census on two days of the year, and one was snowed out by the heaviest snowfall since 1923, so our chances of getting heavy snow Sunday should be pretty slim," Mr. Stirling said.

NEED FEEDING

He also asked Victorians not to forget that small birds have trouble getting at feed in the heavy snow, and they could be helped by people putting out feed for them.

"The gulls and crows will make out, because they can always feed off the beaches at low tide, but for the juncos, chickadees and native sparrows it is a different story," he said.

Amahl Starts Today

The first of seven performances of Amahl and the Night Visitors will be held in Christ Church Cathedral at 8 p.m. today.

Gian-Carlo Menotti's opera will also be performed at the cathedral Wednesday and Thursday, and Jan. 3 to 6.

Tickets, which are free, may be obtained from the cathedral office or Western Music.

Playboys' Fans Dely Weather

Despite the weather a crowd of 2,100 Victoria fans screamed their delight Monday night at the Gary Lewis and the Playboys in Memorial Arena.

Snow was scooped into middle of Hillside to clear lanes

Long-Distance Circuits Plugged

More Get Through

Long-distance telephone circuits out of Victoria were plugged to capacity Christmas Day.

The 130 operators pressed into service for the holiday by the B.C. Telephone Co. took requests for 16,530 long-distance calls, and managed to complete 5,440.

"This was approximately 1,500 more calls than were requested last Christmas," a telephone company spokesman said. Last year 3,000 calls were completed of 15,000 requested.

He said calls within B.C. were normally completed satisfactorily, but there were lengthy delays on calls east of Regina.

He explained this was mainly because of the increased volume of long-distance calling this year.

For the Christmas rush, he said, the company had 105 circuits to Vancouver, where normally it has 90.

Some 6,000 long-distance calls are placed in Victoria on a normal business day, when there are about 70 operators on duty.

The spokesman said Mothers' Day is another busy time for long-distance operators, easily outdoing New Year's Day and Easter.

Snowstorm Worst Here In 43 Years

Monday's snowstorm, when 2.9 inches fell, was the worst to hit Greater Victoria in nearly 43 years, but there have been lots worse.

Weather observers had to go back to Feb. 14, 1923, to find a heavier single snowfall. On that date 10 inches fell.

Old-timers recall the 21-inch fall of Feb. 2, 1916, but the worst recorded 24-hour storm of all happened in 1880. On Jan. 7 of that year, 24 inches were measured.

Snowiest year in the books was 1916, with a 78.3-inch total.

Blizzard Too Much For Wizard

The blizzard won and the Wizard lost, when Bastion Theatre had to cancel Monday's opening of The Wizard of Oz. Both matinee and evening performances were called off because of the snow.

The opening was rescheduled for 2:30 p.m. today.

A theatre spokesman explained that the leading lady, Barbara Depren of Nanaimo, wasn't expected to be able to get down to Victoria in time. On top of that, city police were urging people to stay home Monday.

More than 600 bookings had been made for Monday the spokesman said. These will be exchanged for later performances in McPherson Playhouse. An extra evening performance may be added later in the run.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: My dearest friend (I'll call her Lottie) married an oddball who thinks he is a creative genius. The slob won't take a steady job because he needs to be free in case a brilliant thought hits him. It's not my business that he doesn't take a job, but he doesn't take a bath either and this I find repulsive.

I love Lottie's company. She is a dear person and we grew up together, but Heathcliff is too much. I've decided to put up with him, but my husband froths at the mouth when I tell him Lottie and Heathcliff are coming over.

Tonight when I told him they were dropping by after dinner he said, "I hope you enjoy that squirrel's company because I am leaving." He put on his coat and left. I spent two hours with them, myself.

I felt like crying, Ann. In my book my husband let me down. I do many things for him that I don't want to do, but I believe it's a wife's duty to please her husband. Am I wrong when I say he failed me? How should this problem be handled in the future? — TEARS IN THE PILLOW.

Dear Pillow: From your description of Heathcliff, I guess maybe I would have left with your husband.

If you enjoy Lottie, see her in the afternoon. But don't inflict the squirrel on your husband when you know he cannot stand him.

Dear Ann Landers: My wife and I are in our 60's. Last week we decided to rewrite our wills. Since both my wife and I have been helped greatly by medical science we decided to leave our remains to a medical school.

A few weeks ago we were having dinner with our children and we mentioned this. Well, we never saw so much commotion. It created such a storm that both my wife and I are unstrung. Our children described it as gruesome, creepy and macabre to list a few adjectives.

We explained nothing in the Bible says this practice is sinful. We further explained that it was not a spur of the moment decision — that we had thought about it for a long time and we want to do it.

Our children are putting so much pressure on us to change our minds that we are really upset. Please give us your views. Are we "way out" as they say? — L. G. C.

Dear L. G. C.: Your children have no right to deprive you of the privilege of making this kind of contribution if you want to do it.

Since you have made it clear that this is your wish, consider it settled.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Gillson entertained for friends at dinner in their new home on Swartz Bay Road. The occasion was in honor of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Dierks of Esquimalt who have left to spend the balance of the winter in Southern California. Among guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Morris, Mr. and Mrs. R. Porter, Miss J. A. MacKinnon and Mrs. S. Plant.

Orchid Corsage

Mrs. Gordon Landon was presented with an orchid corsage when Mrs. N. Putnam and Mrs. H. Pope entertained in her honor at tea recently at the former's Hampshire Road home. Those present were Mrs. A. Turner, Mrs. W. Foster, Mrs. J. Mace, Mrs. A. Little, Mrs. S. Peterson, Mrs. R. Wilkinson, Mrs. C. Carter, Mrs. L. Johnstone, Mrs. N. Camus, Mrs. C. Neilson, Mrs. M. Gilchrist, Mrs. A. Kidd.

The Enchanted Look—Portrait's new design for brides of Spring 1966 is that of the Capuchin. The lace cloak frames the face and flows shawl-free into a train over an Empire high wedding dress of filmy Ligoda. One of the new collection of wedding fashions shown to the Canadian press recently by Portrait Gowns of Montreal.—(Mairuth Hodge)

Costume Look

Garb of Medieval Monks Inspires Wedding Dress

MONTREAL—The Baby Doll, the idyllic country wedding and the avant-garde "cage" and "Capuchin" themes were newsmakers at the 1966 bridal show for the press preview on Wednesday here by Portrait Gowns Limited.

Among the show's highlights were body-hugging sheaths engaged in free flowing lace tunics and the total costume headpieces, cloaks and coats.

For the bride with the dramatic flair were the Capuchin—hooded ensembles inspired by the garb of medieval monks. The crusaders of the Middle Ages provided inspiration for another striking number—a helmet covered with silk flowers created by Portrait's younger designer Emile Seleh.

The high Empire line was the hallmark of the very young look where variations on the granny gown theme ranged from soft shirring at the high waist to tubular and A-line shapes. Favorite fabrics for the child-bride look were Portrait's delicately embossed cottons and their ribbon lace.

LACE
The world's great lace centres—Chantilly, Alencon, Cluny, Gaspere and Dogma—were represented in creations inspired by the old-fashioned country wedding. In this group were shirtwaists, laced bodices and puffed sleeves with a folk look.

Costs played a major role, from sleeveless numbers emphasizing elaborate dress sleeves to Cathedral cloaks and ankle-length tuxedos.

In keeping with the comfortable and lightweight look, trains and veils were in soft organzas and illusion tulle.

Among the fabrics shown in the Portrait preview were imported cottons, peau de soie, Ligoda, Sonesta, and pointe d'esprit, a delicately patterned imported tulle.

"Patachou," a newcomer on the fabric scene, was a shibby cotton resembling wool crepe. The Spanish influence was still in evidence in the continued popularity of the mantilla veil and the use of flange sleeves and tiers of lace ruffles at wrists and hemlines.

Montreal designers Anna Knoll and Emile Seleh hail from distant corners and different artistic backgrounds, but they agree in their philosophical approach to fashion: every female is unique—therefore every creation must be distinctively different from the next.

Bridal creations by Anna and Emile of Portrait Gowns Ltd. were seen recently by the Montreal press in a preview showing of wedding fashions for spring '66.

Polish-born Anna—a journalist before she became a couturier—studied at the Hammer-smith Arts and Crafts School in London and spent several years designing for the theatre. After her arrival in Canada 14 years ago, she switched to fashion, but the costume influence is evident in much of her work.

(Her workshop is lined with drawings of 18th century ladies.) One of her favorite creations, called the "wealthy peasant," in keeping with the popular country wedding look, was inspired by European folk costumes. Anna's romantic approach shone through in another of the Portrait show highlights.

"Queen of the Capuchins"—a classic gown covered with full length lace cloak and detachable hood.

Emile has a penchant for the mantle and the avant-garde. Born in Iraq and raised in India, he came to Canada "by accident" when his parents were on a round-the-world tour and they liked the country so much they stayed. He studied haute couture at Montreal's Ottonor Caponi School. While he specializes in the dramatic, Emile confessed to a streak of romanticism when he disclosed his favorite fashion era—a day of "farthingales and bustles."

It also showed in a Spanish-inspired creation for the show. Another striking number designed for the Portrait Gown Spring '66 Collection was Emile's bridal helmet—inspired by those worn by Medieval crusaders—and covered with silk flowers. That flowers are a favorite with the young designer is evident in the three-dimensional posies in organza and silk encircling and creating new bridal silhouettes in the collection.

Hurricane Betsy Still Battering Lloyd's of London

By GRANVILLE J. WATTS

LONDON (AP)—A hurricane named Betsy is causing the biggest headache at Lloyd's since the San Francisco earthquake.

Betsy, the storm that battered part of the southern United States in October, is costing the British insurance giant an estimated £30,000,000 ($90,000,000). The great San Francisco earthquake of 1906 cost Lloyd's £35,000,000 ($175,000,000) when the pound was worth $5.

"Betsy is a dirty word around here," said one Lloyd's official. "The hurricane will undoubtedly cause a loss in the non-marine section of the market for 1965."

Book Goal 2,000,000

VANCOUVER (CP)—The University of B.C. library, now stocked with 700,000 books, expects to have 2,000,000 volumes by 1975, 10 years ahead of schedule. The increase will be made possible by increasing support by private donors and the university administration, says Librarian Basil Stuart-Stobbs.

But Lloyd's will ride the loss without too much trouble. Lloyd's issues more than half of the world's maritime insurance and takes in £300,000,000 ($1,080,000,000) a year in premiums — more than half of it from the United States.

COFFEE HOUSE

It's not a single company at all, but a market place of underwriters, 6,000 of them, who are split up into syndicates and compete against each for the business that brokers bring in from all parts of the world. It all started back in 1688 in Edward Lloyd's coffee house in Tower Street, near the famous Tower of London.

FAR CRY

Lloyd, a shrewd Welshman, provided his own shipping news service for the ship's captains and city merchants who frequented his coffee house.

It's a far cry from the coffee house to Lloyd's present headquarters — five-storey block in the heart of London's financial district.

Oh What a Lovely Way to Spend the Winter!

Nanaimo's Polar Bear Swim Attracts Kids, Pirates, Cricket and Big Ice Cubes

NANAIMO — Polar bears in human form jumped into the icy waters of Departure Bay Sunday. The swim attracted 263 swimmers, highest number to compete since the event started. Last year 247 braved the cold.

Water temperature was 44 degrees. Frank Ney, head of sponsoring Nanaimo Realty, had to beg the last six swimmers to come out of the water so spectators could go home.

The last came out, finally, after 34 frigid minutes in the water.

The last six in the competition were Jan Meikle, * * *

Bill Clark, Doug Easterbrook, Bill Buckley, and Marion and Gail Maki. First three were from Nanaimo, the Makis were from Chase River, Bill Buckley from Cassidy. Youngest swimmers were Ybone van Ingen, Joy Washer, Peter Croft, all seven years old.

Oldest in the contest was George White, 61. Oldest woman was Mrs. C. Washer, 50.

The dice were loaded against the swimmers. Just before the event 300 pounds of ice was tossed into the water.

St. John Ambulance members were on hand to rub down the swimmers. * * *

Swimmers won $1,500 in prize money. Kathy Amos, Miss Nanaimo, was on hand to give the money away.

Mr. Nay auctioned off suntan lotion and 500 pounds of bananas, to show Nanaimo is in Canada's banana belt. Persons dressed as pirates put on a sword fight, others were dressed in old-fashioned swimming trunks ... the event provided many strange sights on the snowy ground.

The Departure Bay "green" was properly white for a game of cricket during the festivities. * * *

Two Die in Cowichan Valley Crashes

DUNCAN — Two persons died in separate accidents in the Cowichan Valley during the Christmas holidays.

Dead are Albert Hendrick Wikkerink, 19, an unmarried Cowichan Station resident, and Leonard Dole Vellacott, 19, a married man from Cobble Hill.

Mr. Wikkerink died when the small truck he was driving went out of control on the Trans-Canada Highway.

The accident occurred at 8 p.m. Dec. 25. Mr. Wikkerink was found lying beside his truck, which was in a ditch.

He was dead when found. The other accident victim was killed Dec. 26 when his car crashed down on him while he attempted to make repairs.

The car was in the driveway of Mr. Vellacott's Fisher Road in the Cowichan Valley before the area became snowbound late home.

Cobble Hill resident R. J. Wil Sunday.

There were 16 minor accidents in the Cowichan Valley before the area became snowbound late home.

NANAIMO — A man has been charged with discharging a weapon dangerous to the public; he will appear in court here today.

The charge was laid after police were told a man was shooting at cars parked on the street Friday.

The incident occurred on Kennedy Street.

Man Hit

DUNCAN — Robert Page, 21, Kokishah, is in good condition at King's Daughters' Hospital after being struck by a car while he was walking on the Trans-Canada Highway here.

Mr. Page suffered back injuries.

Police said the driver of the car was James Roy Painter, Duncan.

Snowman In Yard At Nanaimo

Snow is hard on cars, trouble for strollers, a problem for hungry birds, but great for children. They throw snowballs, build forts, or, like Dana Tisseun, 9, 285 Wall Street, Nanaimo, build snow men. (Agnes Flett.)

How Many Viet Nams and Dominican Republics Can U.S. Handle?

By ARCH MACKENZIE
WASHINGTON (CP) — How many Viet Nams and Dominican Republics can the United States handle?

In Viet Nam, the troop commitments may be near 400,000 before 1966 ends. In Santo Domingo, where recent events show how tenuous the peace still is, there remain 9,000 American troops, or the bulk of the peace force hastily patched together by the Organization of American States.

American NATO forces in Europe, which some European Allies fear will be tapped for Viet Nam.

Democratic Senator Frank Church of Idaho, one of the critics of the American Vietnamese policy, recently wrote: "As president of the U.S., Lyndon B. Johnson can no more protect the world from insurrection than Woodrow Wilson could make it safe for democracy."

His question helps explain the U.S. preoccupation with creating a full-time hemisphere peace force, an idea quietly shot down by Latin America. It helps explain the renewed U.S. backing in 1965 for a more effective United Nations and firm if limited support for Britain's program to break the Rhodesian rebel regime.

It also played a part in the recent renewal within NATO to depict China and the Vietnamese war as just as great a threat to NATO as the Soviet Union ever was.

But Church says the U.S. is going to have to take a more realistic look at its foreign policy because of the sweeping change abroad in the world, the natural tendency for communism to promote "liberation movements" and the sheer impossibility of being everywhere at once.

Copter Saves 27 As Oil Rig Sinks Off British Coast

HULL, England (Reuters)—At least four men died when a British Petroleum Co. oil-drilling rig with a crew of 30 sank Monday in the North Sea east of here.

Twenty survivors were rescued, some seriously injured. Six were unaccounted for. Reports reaching here said the 5,800-ton rig, the Sea Gem, had disintegrated in an explosion. There was no immediate confirmation of the reports.

The navigator of an RAF helicopter which plucked three men from the icy sea said nothing was left of the rig except for a few pieces of steel sticking out of the sea.

SEARCH AREA
The British freighter Balmor was bringing the survivors to Hull while an armada of rescue ships, coast guard vessels, helicopters and an RAF Shackleton rescue plane continued to search the area, 42 miles off shore, in the glare of massed searchlights.

The helicopter's navigator said the rig, a 10-legged platform 295 feet long and about 213 feet wide, appeared to have overturned.

SOME DEAD
"Men were clinging to bits of wreckage," he said. "Some were dead. Others were clinging to two life rafts. We did not see anyone actually in the rafts."

The helicopter, which reached the scene about an hour after the disaster, picked up one survivor, who died a few minutes after being landed at a Yorkshire airfield.

RIG OWNER
The helicopter lowered a man to pick up two more men, but they were dead.

The Balmor was carrying a fourth victim's body. Three of the survivors it carried were seriously injured.

The rig owner first announced that the full complement of 46 men was aboard when it collapsed, but later said 16 were spending Christmas ashore.

SEA BED
The Sea Gem, stationed in an area where the sea is about 100 feet deep, had been preparing to move along the sea bed.

Early Monday the rig manned by an all-British crew, crumpled into the water as a 20-mile an-hour wind — far from gale force — swept the area.

Last October, a month after its first strike, the Sea Gem located another North Sea gas pocket. Parliament was told then that the find was rich enough to justify piping gas to the British mainland eventually.

The field was expected to produce 50,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day.

Thieves Take Food From Sally Ann

JOLIET, Ill. (AP)—Burglars broke into Salvation Army headquarters during the weekend and stole 22 bags of food intended for the poor. Capt. Ross Zargus of the Salvation Army said the packages were worth $15 each.

Sect Likes Dwarfs But Trolls Are Out

TRINIDAD, Colo. (UPI)—A settlement populated by six young men and women, some of whom profess to believe in dwarfs and trolls, has sprung up near this southern Colorado community.

Most of them have spent at least some time in college. None go by their real names. The substance of their belief is that dwarfs are good and trolls are bad, and that the good dwarfs, concerned over impending nuclear destruction, are trying to re-establish their ancient communications with humans.

"Curley Bensen," 24, who said he is a psychology and philosophy graduate of the University of Kansas and a native of New York, said the group calls itself the "Drop-pegs" and the settlement "Drop City."

"We lost contact with dwarfs, wizards, elves and the tree people thousands of years ago," Bensen said.

Not all members of the group share Bensen's beliefs.

"Clard Svensen," who said he was 24, an art graduate of the University of Kansas and a former graduate student at the University of Colorado, scoffed at the notion of dwarfs and elves.

Bensen said membership of the "droppegs" in all totals about 40 and that about half of them are living around Boulder, Colo.

Their settlement at Trinidad consists of two small buildings of wood and tar-impregnated wood fibre for living, a pair of domes for the kitchen and a dormitory, two tents, a chicken coop, a small conical structure covered with tar paper and an outhouse. Bensen called the living buildings "geodesic domes."

Rebel Premier Elected 'Politician of Year'

ALICANTE, Spain (UPI)—Rhodesian rebel Premier Ian Smith was voted the most distinguished politician of the year in a concourse held here Monday by the local newspaper Informaciones.

Pope Paul was elected Man of the Year for human values while the National Aeronautics and Space Administration took the title for science, and the late architect, Le Corbusier, won the vote for culture.

Fireman Rescues Life-Size Doll

NEW YORK (UPI)—A fireman fought his way through smoke and flames to rescue an infant Monday, only to discover he was cradling a doll in his arms.

"There's a baby trapped up there," Mrs. Viola Goodwin, the child's grandmother, screamed as firemen arrived where she had been minding the child.

Fireman Frank Cartica, 35, a father of five, dashed up four flights of stairs to the apartment and broke down the locked door.

Driven back by heat, he entered an adjoining apartment, climbed out to the fire escape and broke a window to enter the burning apartment.

Wearing thick gloves, Cartica stumbled blindly through the smoke to a bed and picked up what he thought was the infant.

Back at the window Cartica discovered that he was holding a life-size doll. He dropped the doll and plunged back into the smoke and this time found the unconscious infant.

The fireman revived the child, three-month-old Darrow Brown, on the way to Lincoln Hospital. Hospital officials said Darrow would live.

Garden Notes

Coddling Can Kill

By M. V. CHESNUT

Last year, just after the New Year, I was swamped with letters requesting information on how to care for various Christmas gift houseplants. Many of these letters were from folks who had never gone in much for indoor gardening, and they didn't have the foggiest idea what to do for the welfare of the lovely flowering plant that had come to live with them. I made a note in my diary at the time reminding myself to do a series of articles on this subject when the post-Christmas season, rolled around again.

Most of the presentation houseplants are long-lived perennials or shrubs, capable of giving more than one year of bloom. These gift plants, though, seem to suffer an unusually high mortality due to improper care. The new owner, infatuated with the lovely gift, goes overboard and overwhelms the poor thing with mistaken kindness; she gives it a cosy spot close to a sizzling radiator, does it with little dribbles of water several times a day, feeds it too many plant pills, and the inevitable happens. Make no mistake about it—a plant will stand up much better under a little wholesome neglect than under constant, fussy mothering.

I think we slip into this error in the mistaken belief that plants enjoy the same living conditions as human beings. As a human, we eat three times a day and if we miss a meal, we suffer the discomfort of hunger. We take a drink of water even oftener. To sit at ease in our shirt-sleeves, the room must be heated to 72 degrees with a nice, comfortable fuff in the air. These conditions suit us, so why shouldn't they suit our plants?

***

If we have the moonah, we leave these northern climes during the unpleasant part of the year and head for the desert resorts of Phoenix, Palm Springs and Las Vegas, where the temperature is high and the humidity low. You'll notice, though, that vegetation is never very lush in deserts and the only native plants are those which are especially adapted by nature to this environment.

***

Humans are warm-blooded creatures; plants are not. Plants, generally, don't like the conditions that humans enjoy, nor do humans find comfort in the optimum growing conditions for plants. For instance, if you were to visit a greenhouse where potted cyclamens are grown for the Christmas gift trade, you'd keep your topcoat on and you wouldn't stay long, for the temperature at flowering time is a chilly 45 degrees, with fairly high humidity.

While your overheated living room may be far from ideal for your plant, I should point out that the modern houseplants of commerce have been chosen for their ability to adapt and survive under uncongenial conditions. Just as man has learned how to survive in the Arctic, in the tropics, and even in outer space, so will these especially chosen gift plants survive and bloom in the home. Always remember, though, that they are not necessarily happy under these unnatural conditions and would almost certainly perform better in cooler, moister air.

***

If you want your gift houseplant to stick around and become your long-time companion, then, try to come as close as you can to the conditions in the commercial greenhouse in which the plant was raised. This means plenty of light, for one thing, and a cool, moist atmosphere. I realize, of course, that you can't be expected to revamp the heating system and sit around bundled up in sweaters and parkas just to suit your gift plant, but at least you can find a home for it well removed from the fierce heat of a radiator or the sirocco-like blast from a hot air register.

***

Next to too much warmth and low air humidity, I would say the most common cause of failure is too much water; far more plants die of drowning in soggy, airless soil than ever expire from neglect. Always remember that plant roots MUST have air to survive, and for air to penetrate between the grains of soil, the soil must be allowed to become a little dry between waterings.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Kim Exit Boon to Sharon

LONDON—(NANA) — As soon as Kim Novak left her 13 film, the role of 22-year-old Sharon Tate was increased threefold. It was always important but now it's big as well. Replacement Deborah Kerr, being well adjusted and secure in her own big part, is taking it all very well.

***

No one quite knows what Kim's problem was with producer Marty Ransohoff, but before her "walkout" when Kim flopped up some steps to her dressing-room on the set, Marty attempted to follow her, whereupon Miss Novak screamed some extra-special epithets and slammed the dressing-room door in his face.

Kim was obviously unhappy with the film from the word go and, like I said before, everyone with whom I talked on the set believes her misery was caused by having to be in the same film with the 22-year-old Miss Tate, who is blonde, blue-eyed and who looks a lot like Kim did when I first met her. I was told, too, that Kim did not like the cameraman and she did not care very much for the director.

***

To wind up the 13 saga, Sharon Tate's best beau, Hollywood hair stylist Jay Sebring, flew into London from Hollywood when he heard that Sharon had been running around with Albert Finney. Sharon is a huge hit in the interesting circles in London but if she married any of the bluebloods pursuing her, Ransohoff would tear out his remaining hairs. He put Sharon under contract for seven years two years ago, trained her extensively for her screen debut in 13, and it is more or less understood that she would remain single until he had received some interest on his capital.

No Nasal Drip Under Arms Says ERMA BOMBECK

Aerosol a Real Bomb

It wasn't the first time it happened. I stepped out of the shower, dried myself off with a towel and reached for the can of spray deodorant. Something cold and menthol touched my skin and I knew without looking that the nasal passages under my arms wouldn't be clogged for at least another 24 hours.

I've heard some incredible stories of people who have grabbed the wrong aerosol can, from the woman who sprayed her hair with room deodorizer to the man who sprayed his throat with laundry starch.

I was still thinking about it when I slipped under the covers. There was no doubt about it. Some day aerosol cans with their too-convenient push buttons would rule the world and we would be their slaves. I slept and dreamt...

your shoes." (A trickle of window cleaner ran down their sides) "Here, brush your teeth." (Pasteurized cheese ran off my toothbrush.)

The bad dream continued. Finally, I saw an army of severed trees move toward me until I was captive. Surrounded I could only inhale a wild combination of furniture polish, foot powder and garbage can disinfectant. I coughed and ran toward the palace.

It seemed like hours before I looked up and saw a woman swooshed in black. "I'm wanda the witch," she said brightly, "and I'm here to help you with your fly-away hair. Why use a wacky hair spray that leaves your hair limp and unmanageable, or so stiff you can't get a comb through it. Here, my dear, try this."

I took the can and sprayed generously. Flat black paint misted from the can and came down my hair and dripped onto my face. "Wanda!" I gasped, "you've got a mean mouth and I'll get you for this!"

I sat up in bed with a jerk (an action, not an object). My husband turned over sleepily. "Just a bad dream."

He snuffed the air. "You got a cold or something?"

"Only under my nose," I muttered. "And I think I've got it whapped!"

In Toronto Phone Book

E. P. Taylor Can't Get Credit Karl Marx Not a Communist

TORONTO (CP) — Somewhere in Toronto lives a Karl Marx, a William Shakespeare, an Elizabeth Taylor, five James Bonds and three Goldfingers who can't cash in on anything but practical jokes.

Marx is a Toronto capitalist who owns a metal company and vigorously denies any political affiliation — especially with the founder of modern communism.

William Shakespeare is a tax man and Elizabeth Taylor is single and a secretary.

These are only a few of the ordinary Toronto persons who have discovered that famous names and the telephone can "drive you nuts."

***

Take E. P. Taylor for instance—not the wealthy industrialist but the chap who works as an attendant at the Ontario Hospital here. He has trouble getting credit with the gas company.

"If I call the Consumers' Gas for service, I calmly tell them my name and where they can reach me at work," he says.

***

"But as soon as they get the hospital number, they put two and two together and I don't get service, or credit, or anything without making a federal case out of it," Taylor said.

The James Bonds often get mysterious telephone calls with some new ideas on how to trap the Goldfingers. The namesakes of fictional secret agent 007 Bond, created by Ian Fleming, are truck drivers, engineers and a salesman among other things.

***

The Bob Hopes, the Humphrey Bogarts, Jack Frosts, Tommy Tuckers and Jack Horners get the same treatment.

***

But few pranksters call Richard Nixon twice. He works in the identification bureau of the Metropolitan Police.

***

"I tell people I am so inactive of the American politician... I am not interested in politics and I don't see what's unusual or funny about having a famous name," he said.

Santa Visits Manhattan

NEW YORK—Tavern owner Joseph Bonavita gave away $10,000 in crisp new $2 bills to passersby in midtown Manhattan. Why?

"It's Christmas, ain't it?" He asked.

His only worry was that his wife Emma would get mad at him as she has done in previous years when he gave away huge sums of cash to total strangers.

"The heck with her. I make money and I like to give it away," said the greying Santa Claus from Brooklyn.

Policeman and a squad car to guard him and his $10,000 and a newsman to chronicle his munificence. Bonavita, 60, trooped over to the busiest corner in the world, Broadway and 42nd Street at Times Square. There he distributed $2 bills to all comers.

"The guy's off his nut," observed a bleached blonde.

"Do you believe in Sandy Claus?" Bonavita asked her. "Mister," she replied sincerely, "right now I'd believe anything you said."

Bonavita, delighted, peeled off two $2 bills and handed them to her.

And so on until his stacks of currency were depleted. When it was all over, Bonavita turned to the newsman.

"We had a good time, right?" "Joe," the reporter answered, "We had a ball."

In Italian, Bonavita means "the good life."

Gina's Husband, Sophia Start Income Tax War

ROME (UPI)—The first shots in Italy's annual war between taxpayer and tax collector were fired Monday. Sophia Loren, Gina Lollobrigida's husband and opera star Mario Del Monaco were among the first casualties.

Rome assessors published their annual income estimates and thousands of Italians—most of them wealthy—began challenging the assessors' claims.

DENIES CLAIM

The curvaceous Miss Loren insisted she didn't make anything like the $560,000 tax officials say she did during 1965. She didn't say how much she did make.

The Yugoslav-born Dr. Milko Sirocic, a former practicing physician who turned publisher after marrying film beauty Gina Lollobrigida, announced he would fight the assessors' claim he had made more than $322,000.

RICH VOICE

Del Monaco, an international operatic great, was assigned a taxable income of $160,000. He added his rich voice to the chorus of challengers.

In many cases the assessors' estimate of taxable income was accompanied by the citizen's report of what he earned. Almost invariably, the citizen claimed to be much poorer than the assessor thought he was. The assessors' estimates and citizens' reports are just the opening skirmish in the annual war. It will continue through next year with reassessments, investigations and court suits.

And just about when it ends—with negotiated final assessments—the assessors will have new estimates of taxable income for 1966. Then it starts all over again.

The largest income in Rome—at least according to the assessor—was $906,000 earned by contractor Goffredo Manfredi. He reported making about one-tenth that amount.

LBJ Offers Impressive Performance

By ARCH MACKENZIE
WASHINGTON (CP) — President Johnson was composer, conductor and soloist in the United States political orchestra of 1965.

The virtuosity of his one-man-band performance — probably the greatest by any American president — suggested it will be hard to top or equal in 1966, even by himself.

But if 1965 saw the legislative foundations of the Great Society laid by a dutiful Congress, the actual implementation posed formidable challenges.

More testing than that, observers agreed, was the course of the undeclared war in Viet Nam, fraught with emotional undertones packing political dynamite.

By itself, the Republican party seemed no great threat for the off-year congressional elections next November. So far, notes still testified to the internal discord left by their crushing election defeat of 1964 and there appeared little real hope that the party could substantially change the Democratic party's grip on Congress in 1966.

But Viet Nam had settled down to a major land war in Asia, with a mounting tide of casualties, higher draft calls and costs that were expected to add at least $5,000,000,000 to the budget. Politically it could not be ignored.

Coupled with the financial tab implicit in the Johnson legislative record of 1965 — from Medicare to the anti-poverty war and beautification — the war mounted fresh pressure on the economy, the international payments deficit and the Johnson theme of political consensus with left, right and centre.

Shocks Grandparents

HOLDS BUDGET
The president in the last two years had on paper—if not in fact—held the national budget below $100,000,000,000, but no such magic was possible for 1966.

Against the president's wishes, the autonomous Federal Reserve Board Dec. 5 increased its lending rate to banks to 4½ per cent from four, thereby applying tight-money measures capable of cooling off the rate of economic expansion.

Elsewhere, despite the dramatics of far-reaching child rights legislation in 1965, the drive by the 20,000,000 American Negroes for full social, legal and economic equality raised new problems for every step of progress.

The Republicans worked hard to reorganize, chiefly for the next presidential race in 1968. All 435 House of Representatives seats and 33 of the 100 Senate seats will be contested next November.

But the Democratic edge in the house is 294 to 141 and the Republicans to make Senate gains would have to hold their 14 seats up for renewal and bite into the 19 Democratic seats involved.

For Johnson personally, it has been a year of impressive triumphs and—if his treasured public opinion polls were correct—confronting immediate loss almost everything he has done from Viet Nam and the Dominican Republic to legislation designed to shatter the entrenched barriers against Negro voting in the south.

INCREASE TROOPS
As Vietnamese guerrillas steadily strengthened their hold in South Viet Nam—battering U.S. commitments—the re-estimated in February with air strikes against the North and an expansion of troops that shot past the 165,000 mark, compared with 23,000 at the start of the year.

In late April, he sent 12,000 men into the Dominican Republic, officially to save lives—which he did—and unofficially to stave off another Cuban-style Communist regime. Just how legitimate that belief was has remained in doubt among his critics.

In May, the president suddenly was raked with bitter press criticism—a product of gathering doubts spawned by his way of wielding power, his foreign policy, his often-abrasive personality and his own hostile reaction to the press.

The outburst eased but an arms-length coolness remained for the majority of the big Washington press corps.

In October, his legislative labors ended, he announced he would have a gall-bladder operation and the rest of the year was spent primarily back at his Texas ranch.

As the year ended, the president was facing stronger calls for heavier bombing of North Viet Nam, a policy which he had rejected consistently.

But in the context of rising American casualty lists, there was political appeal in the argument that bombing the North or even China could save American lives and shorten a war to which no end now seemed remotely near.

Engine Blast Investigated
OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)—Two aviation agencies and four companies Monday began an investigation to try to determine what caused a jet engine of a Japan Air Lines DC-8 to explode moments after the plane took off from San Francisco International Airport.

Pilot Tsuneo Kato landed the big plane at Oakland International Airport eight miles to the east with no injuries to the 41 aboard. It was the second such incident involving a plane taking off from San Francisco airport in six months.

Scientists Debate 'The Pill'

Sex Now Recreational Says Social Worker

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—A social scientist says that with widespread use of the birth control pill "sex has become recreational rather than productive and the whole basis of our morality has changed."

Others at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science at the University of California did not agree wholly, but none questioned the effectiveness of the pill nor the vast implications for change in the world social structure.

The speaker who called present day sex recreational was Martin B. Loeb, director of the school of social work at the University of Wisconsin.

Loeb said that despite the profound implications in worldwide use of the pill, there is so far "little sense of revolution but simply the sense of progress that shocks grandparents, provokes parents and intrigues children."

Scientists in Sunday's Symposium on "psychological control in conception and its implications" expressed these views:

● In all medical history there has been no potent drug used so regularly for many years by so many people.

● It has become socially acceptable to discuss the pill in relaxed company, whereas open discussion of other methods of contraception are not acceptable.

● There is "on the distant horizon" possible genetic control that would prevent some diseases.

● Women may someday take a pill to get pregnant rather than vice versa.

"It is probably that before long in all medical history there will have been no potent drug used more regularly for many years by so many people as the oral contraceptive."

Participants in the symposium were concerned primarily with sociological implications rather than the pill's effectiveness that for the most part is now taken for granted.

Between 6,000 and 8,000 members of the 100,000-member—were expected for the 132nd meeting and the fourth meeting of the Berkeley campus of the University of California.

Rhoda Mettraux, project director for "the cultural structure of perceptual communications" at the American Museum of Natural History, New York City, said that people are "reversing all of human history" in the current situation.

They are, she said, "proposing to put in women's hands the chief responsibility for not having and not rearing children as part of a public social responsibility of assuring that the Earth will remain a liveable planet."

"Furthermore," she said, "this responsibility with all its individual implications as well."

Little Change Despite Probe, Shuffle

By STEWART MACLEOD
OTTAWA (CP) — Considering all the political events of the last 12 months—including a general election, a major cabinet shakeup, the Dorion inquiry and an unusual run of leadership crises — Parliament goes into 1966 with remarkably little change from 1965.

Prime Minister Pearson still heads a minority Liberal government after an inconclusive general election Nov. 8. John Diefenbaker still heads the official opposition after an attempt to unseat him from the Conservative leadership.

Social Credit Leader Thompson is back after an attempt on his leadership. New Democratic Leader Douglas is back with more members. Creditiste Leader Caouette is back with fewer.

And the dust appears to have settled around the Dorion report—involving the issue of integrity in government which rocked Ottawa through most of 1965.

The burning issue of alleged scandal in high places dominated political events of the year. Although the parliamentary uproar preceding the Dorion inquiry had its biggest impact in late 1964, it throbbed on into 1965, resulting in more noisy political scenes, resignations and cabinet shifts and eventually figuring in the general election campaign.

The direct political result of the scandals issue included the resignation of Guy Favreau as justice minister—he was then appointed Privy Council president — after Chief Justice Frederic Doherty questioned his judgment.

Clean Bill of Health

Guy Rouleau (L) — Montreal (Dollard) resigned as parliamentary secretary to Mr. Pearson, and later from the Commons itself. Rene Tremblay, later given a clean bill of health by Judge Dorion, was moved from immigration to the less sensitive post of postmaster-general.

The indirect result was a wider cabinet shuffle to replace the affected ministers.

On another question entirely, Yves Dupuis, minister without portfolio, was asked to resign by Mr. Pearson last Jan. 20 after it was alleged the minister was involved in influence peddling in connection with a racetrack charter.

But the biggest cabinet shock prior to the major reorganization of the administration in December was when Finance Minister Gordon, one of Mr. Pearson's closest advisers and friends, resigned Nov. 11 on the grounds that he gave the prime minister "bad advice" in favor of holding the election.

With Mr. Gordon's resignation, the Nov. 8 election brought three cabinet vacancies—Agriculture Minister Hays was defeated in Calgary South and Mines Minister MacNaughton lost in Prince. Subsequently, two more cabinet ministers resigned.

Mr. Tremblay as postmaster-general and Maurice Lamontagne as secretary of state. This set the stage for the sweeping changes in late December.

In the big cabinet reorganization two new ministries were created: Manpower, and resources and energy. Jean Marchand will head manpower when enabling legislation is passed and his department will also handle immigration. The department of resources and energy will be under Jean-Luc Pepin.

Sharp Finance Minister
Among other changes, Mitchell Sharp was appointed finance minister. Robert Winters, minister of trade and commerce, John J. Green, agriculture minister and Allan MacEachen minister of health and welfare. Judy LaMarsh was moved from health and welfare to secretary of state.

With this fresh appearance, the minority government goes into the new session Jan. 18 to face a heavy legislative program and an opposition regarded as basically stronger than in the last Parliament.

The additional firepower on the Conservative benches includes former ministers George Hees, David Fulton and R. A. Ball. And among the additions to the NDP is David Lewis, an able debater from Toronto who was in Parliament in 1962-63. The strong show of unity presented by the Conservatives in the election had seemed unlikely as the year began. Quebec Leader Leon Balcer spearheaded a leadership crisis in January with his call for a national convention.

The party's national executive rejected the demand, by a close vote, and on April 7 Mr. Balcer quit the Conservatives to sit as an independent. He was followed by René Paul (Berthier-Maslinongne - Delanauvère). Neither ran in the general election.

But at the end of 1965 Mr. Diefenbaker, now 70, seemed firmly entrenched as party leader. He received much of the credit for preventing the Liberals from gaining a majority.

At dissolution, the Liberals held 127 seats, the Conservatives 92, the NDP 18, Creditistes 13, Social Credit nine and independents two. There were four vacancies.

Liberals in 131 Seats
After all the election ballots were in and the recounts had been completed, the Liberals had moved up to 131, the Conservatives to 97, the NDP to 21. The Creditistes fell to nine and Social Credit dropped to five. One independent and one independent Conservative were elected.

Soon after the election, Mr. Thompson was challenged for the leadership of the Social Credit party. He won on the first ballot over MPs Bert LeBoe (Carleton Place) and H. A. Olson (Medicine Hat).

While 1965 tended to be overshadowed by the Dorion inquiry and parliamentary bickering, a lot of legislation was churning. The marathon session that ended April 2 produced the new flag, the Canada Pension Plan, the national labor code, youth allowances, new federal-provincial sharing formulas and the "opting-out" formulas.

The session lasted for a record 248 days. The previous record was 174 days in 1960-61. After the House prorogued for a weekend, the new session opened with a three-day recess.

After the House prorogued for another marathon. But the summer recess came June 30 and with the election call in September, the old Parliament died.

Just before the recess, the Commons approved a controversial plan to streamline House rules and thereby speed the passage of legislation. It also approved a $50,000,000 fund to provide capital development grants to firms locating in reclassified designated areas.

Tax Cut Nullified
And it approved a budget that gave Canadians a 10-per-cent cut in personal income taxes. But on Jan. 1 the immediate impact of this saving will be wiped out by contributions to the Canada Pension Plan.

The issue most likely to dominate the new House is medical care insurance. Mr. Pearson has set a schedule that calls for its implementation by 1967, and already it is shaping up as a contentious project.

All opposition parties have objected to certain aspects of the proposal and, if the prime minister's schedule is to be maintained, Parliament must move fairly quickly.

BUSINESS LEFT OVER
Apart from new legislation, there is still a long list of left-overs from the last House. This includes establishment of the Canada Development Corporation to provide an investment company for individual Canadians, railway legislation based on the MacPherson report, debate on the abolition of capital punishment, implementation of the Canada Assistance Plan as part of the war on poverty, and changes in the Immigration Act.

Mr. Diefenbaker has indicated his party will try to defeat the government on the "Integrity-in-government" issue at the first opportunity. But Mr. Douglas has said the government should be given a chance to see what it can do, and his party would support it on all "worthwhile legislation."

Most observers doubt that the government is likely to be defeated early in the session.

While 1965 was a boisterous year in federal politics, it was relatively quiet in the provincial field. No elections were held over from the last House. This during the year, although there could be more action in 1966. Prince Edward Island, Quebec and Manitoba are all entering their fourth year since the last election and 1966 contests seem probable.

For Thousands of Islanders COLD, BLACK HOLIDAY

By PATRICK O'NEILL

Island Editor

The Island's white holiday was a grim ordeal for many residents: some stranded by snow, many without light and heat.

Many residents of the Headquarters "Road area, a rural district between Courtenay and Black Creek, were reported without power for 36 hours.

ROADS UNCLEARED

The reason: Reports said roads were uncleared and Hydro crews could not reach the lines to patch the trouble.

Some families in the farming area had invited friends from more than 100 miles away to enjoy turkey dinner over the holidays.

COLD FARE

Those without power spent the weekend huddled in blankets and sweaters, with cold fare to ease their hunger.

Several residents with telephones still in order placed calls to B.C. Hydro asking for repairs.

NOTHING DONE

They were told unofficially the roads were blocked, highway crews had not cleared paths for Hydro trucks, and nothing could be done.

One report indicated some weekend skiers on Green Mountain near Ladysmith were stranded because of the heavy snowfall.

STAY IN HOSPITAL

In snow-clogged Nanaimo, hospital administrator Gordon Frith made arrangements for the whole staff to stay overnight in the hospital; many unable to get home or on early shift took advantage of the arrangements.

He said "the hospital has standby power, and graders are working hard keeping roads to the hospital clear."

GALIANO STRANDED

Galileo Island residents were both powerless and stranded Monday.

Reports indicated the ferry Queen of the Island was making

Storm Story

On 12, 17, 20, 22

By BILL STAVDAL and BRIAN DOHERTY

Wear power line repair crews today resumed cleaning up the damage of Monday's snow blitz, which dumped 10 inches and more on Greater Victoria.

More flurries of wet snow were forecast for today as masses of warm and cold air continued streamlining over southern Vancouver Island.

Outlying areas were hard hit by widespread power failures, the chief trouble brought by the storm. For most people it amounted to inconvenience; others, notably dairy farmers, found themselves in serious trouble without electricity to run their machines.

FARMERS HIT

While thousands of capital residents made do with cold meals through the day, dairy farmers along West Burnside Road and adjacent areas grew desperate over the plight of their cattle.

The farmers were unable to pump water. Lacking power for milking machines, they were also unable to cope with milking hundreds of cows.

Victoria's storm was mild by comparison with what hit the upper Island. But even so, it set its own record.

OLD MARK

The official measurement of 8.9 inches became the heaviest recorded fall for a 24-hour period in December. The old mark was 8 inches, set in 1941.

Beginning around midnight, it first greeted district roads with slush, then choked them as the night wore on.

By early morning, when overhead trees and branches began giving way, scores of power failures occurred.

Despite many outages in urban Victoria, the brunt was borne by residents in thickly wooded outlying areas, where lines were more vulnerable.

COLD TURKEY

From Colwood through to Sooke, Jordan River and Port Renfrew, thousands of Christmas trees winked out. Fireplaces were lit and cold turkey became universal fare.

The Saanich Peninsula shivered through most of the day. Neighbors occasionally moved in with one another, wherever an oil heater could stand in for a dead oil furnace.

HYDRO EXPLAINS

Crews of B.C. Hydro and Power Authority fought a losing battle to keep power running. But lights and heat often shut down minutes after electricity was restored.

A B.C. Hydro explained a typical outage this way:

NEW POWER

A heavy - loaded branch cracked and fell, bouncing off a power line below. The snaking line touched a parallel wire momentarily, sending a short-circuit surging through the system and blowing fuses at safety points.

When the outage was reported, traced and corrected, new power poured through the system. But most lights and outlets on the circuit had been turned on to await the restoration of power.

The overloaded circuit promptly blew its fuses again. This pattern was repeated in many areas, said the B.C. Hydro spokesman.

WORST DAYS

"This is one of the worst days for many years," he said. The authority was swamped with calls. Many residents called all day but were unable to get through on the office's six lines.

By nightfall only East Sooke and Port Renfrew were the only areas without power.

Dr. Archibald Chatters Birds Invade Bedroom

Warm water baths kept Dr. Archibald alive as a power outage chilled Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hyndman's Featherland Wildlife Gardens Monday.

Dr. Archibald is a nine-year-old, three-foot alligator whose metabolism can't stand exposure to Canadian winters.

So Mrs. Hyndman spent the day warming pans of water atop an oil-fired space heater, then pouring it over her chilly alligator.

The Hyndmans went to bed with more than a dozen trained birds in their bedroom. Altogether, about 40 of their 150 birds were given the shelter of their home during Monday's snowstorm.

"We're in terrible straits," said Mrs. Hyndman Monday evening. "Our candles are down to almost nothing."

Like many other residents of West Burnside, they were without power all day after the heavy snow of the morning.

Mr. Hyndman sought help from B.C. Hydro after applying his fallen phone line, but crews were unable to reach their home yesterday.

Vatican Tries Hard To Interest Hanoi

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Vatican diplomats were reported Monday negotiating under orders from Pope Paul to bring about a new year's ceasefire in Viet Nam.

Some reports said contact already had been made between papal envoys and representatives of North Viet Nam in Cambodia. The Vatican has an apostolic delegate to the Roman Catholic hierarchy there.

Another possible channel was through Hungary. Informants said Vatican diplomats had been instructed in the wake of the Christmas ceasefire experiment to step up their secret contacts with both sides in the Viet Nam war.

Pope Paul was disappointed that the Christmas ceasefire had appealed for was so short-lived.

NEW EFFORTS

But both the Roman Catholic pontiff and his top diplomatic advisers were said to feel that, even so, the Pope's appeal had achieved some results and that new efforts were called for.

It was not indicated whether the Pope planned another public appeal for a specific ceasefire for New Year's as he had done Dec. 19 for the Christmas truce.

SECRET MOVE

Sources said it was possible that this time the proposals would be kept strictly within secret diplomatic channels.

The Vatican has no direct diplomatic relations with North Viet Nam. But informants report that Vatican diplomats have indirect channels to Hanoi.

WORKING TIE

There is speculation that one channel is by way of Hungary, where the Vatican has had working ties with the Budapest regime since September, 1964.

An accord was reached there enabling Pope Paul to appoint a number of bishops in Hungary without government interference. At the same time Archbishop Endre Hamvas was named president of the Hungarian episcopacy to represent the Roman Catholic Church in dealings with the country's Communist government.

The message, in a letter from Archbishop Egidio Vagnozzi, apostolic delegate to Washington, said the Pope had shown his satisfaction with the truce by sending a special message to the governments of South and North Viet Nam exhorting each to do everything possible to bring about a just and peaceful solution.

NO REPLY

Latin said Johnson felt the message didn't require a reply. Authoritative sources did not discourage speculation that for a second time since the air raids began in February, 1965, the bombing was being suspended to see whether the Communists would come to the negotiating table.

U.S. Bombers Grounded

North Stays Silent On Air Strike Halt

WASHINGTON (AP) — The state department found nothing noteworthy Monday in Hanoi's response so far to the latest halt in U.S. air strikes on North Viet Nam.

Last May Washington ordered a five-day pause in the bombing to see whether this would produce peace feelers. U.S. officials said then they got only a harsh reaction from Hanoi.

With the current halt in the U.S.-South Vietnamese air raids on the North in its fourth day — counting the Christmas truce period — a state department press officer was asked about the response from North Viet Nam.

NO HINTS

"I know of no noteworthy comment from Hanoi on any subject affecting Viet Nam within the last 24 to 36 hours," he replied.

State department sources said the spokesman included the 24-hour reference in his answer to take into account Communist charges of U.S.-South Vietnamese truce violations. They said there have been no peace soundings from the Communist side at any time since Friday.

In Austin, Tex., acting press secretary, Joseph Laitin was asked whether the U.S. had initiated a new pause in the bombing. "I have no information whatsoever on that," he replied.

Laitin said Johnson received an indirect message Monday from Pope Paul expressing pleasure over the Christmas truce in Viet Nam.

The message, in a letter from Archbishop Egidio Vagnozzi, apostolic delegate to Washington, said the Pope had shown his satisfaction with the truce by sending a special message to the governments of South and North Viet Nam exhorting each to do everything possible to bring about a just and peaceful solution.

Sudbury Starts Long Journey

VANCOUVER (CP) — The salvage tug Sudbury II put a line aboard a crippled freighter far out in the Pacific Monday and began a 20-day tow to Portland, Ore.

A report monitored here Monday night said the British Columbia-based tug discovered no injuries and no trouble aboard the Formosan freighter Tainan apart from its broken tall shaft.

SPARTA, Ill. (AP) — Five infants died Monday when fire destroyed their five-room frame house in rural Eden, about two miles east of here.

Bomb Lull Enters Fourth Day

SAIGON (AP) — The suspension in the air war against North Viet Nam continued into the fourth day today, a U.S. spokesman announced.

On the ground, however, U.S. Marines killed 63 Viet Cong in scattered fighting near the Da Nang Air Base Monday.

The S. spokesman said at 1 p.m. (12 midnight EST Monday) that no orders had been received from Washington to resume bombing of the Communist north. He declined to comment further.

The marines reported taking only light casualties in the skirmishes that flared around the big base 380 miles northeast of Saigon. Ground actions elsewhere in South Viet Nam were proving costly to both Americans and South Vietnamese.

Thinking Man's Pill May Aid Memory

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Some persons now are swallowing a promising new memory pill to see whether it aids faltering memories.

Others are, or soon will be, taking the same pill to see whether it helps them learn faster.

If this drug—or something like it—really works, then a forget pill also might come along. It might erase painful or crippling memories.

The prospects result from research into the brain and its mysterious mechanism of memory. Some scientists think memory involves a special kind of chemical. Others deny there is any "magic memory molecule" involved. They do not think the brain mechanism is that simple.

The new pill and other research into the chemistry and behaviour of the brain were a prime topic Monday at sessions of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

One theory holds that memory of any new knowledge or experience is stored in brain cells—some of the 10,000,000,000 of them—through a nucleic acid known as RNA.

So, some scientists reasoned, something that increased the manufacture of RNA might improve memory or ability to learn.

And they turned up a good bet, judging from tests on rats, said Dr. N. P. Plotnikoff and Dr. Alvin J. Glasky of Abbott Laboratories, Chicago, and Dr. Ione N. Simon, biochemist of the Illinois State Pediatric Institute.

Rats, given the chemical, magnesium pemoline, learned a useful kind of behavior —to avoid an electric shock —four to five times faster than untreated rats, Dr. Plotnikoff said. And they remembered the lesson for months rather than days, he added.

Humans now are starting to take the experimental drug to learn whether it may benefit them, Dr. Glasky said.

Dr. Glasky said researchers were interested in testing the drug in memory or in helping slow-learning children to learn better.

Dr. Eugene Roberts of City of Hope Medical centre, Duarte, Calif., said "there is not a shred of evidence that there is such a thing as a magic memory molecule" such as RNA.

He said he regards the brain more as a "probability computer" using certain nerve connections and pathways selectively to store memory.

Dr. Glasky said researchers were interested in testing the drug in memory or in helping slow-learning children to learn better.

COLD, DARK HOLIDAY ISLANDERS' ORDEAL

By PATRICK O'NEILL
Island Editor

Storm Pictures
On 12, 17, 20, 22

By BILL STAVDAL and BRIAN DOHERTY

Wear power line repair crews today resumed cleaning up the damage of Monday's snow blizzard, which dumped 10 inches and more on Greater Victoria.

The Island's white holiday was a grim ordeal for many residents: some stranded by snow, many without light and heat.

Many residents of the Head-Quarters Road area, a rural district between Courtenay and Black Creek, were reported without power for 36 hours.

ROADS UNCLEARED

The reason: Reports said roads were uncleared and Hydro crews could not reach the lines to patch the trouble.

Some families in the farming area had invited friends from more than 100 miles away to enjoy turkey dinner over the holidays.

COLD FARE

Those without power spent the weekend huddled in blankets and sweaters, with cold fare to ease their hunger.

Several residents with telephones still in order placed calls to B.C. Hydro asking for repairs.

NOTHING DONE

They were told unofficially the roads were blocked, highway crews had not cleared paths for Hydro trucks, and nothing could be done.

One report indicated some weekend skiers on Green Mountain near Ladysmith were stranded because of the heavy snowfall.

STAY IN HOSPITAL

In snow-clogged Nanaimo, hospital administrator Gordon Frith made arrangements for the whole staff to stay overnight in the hospital; many unable to get home or on early shift took advantage of the arrangements.

He said "the hospital has standby power, and graders are working hard keeping roads to the hospital clear."

GALLIANO STRANDED

Galliano Island residents were both powerless and stranded Monday.

Reports indicated the ferry Queen of the Island was making

Dr. Archibald Chatters Birds Invade Bedroom

Warm water baths kept Dr. Archibald alive as a power outage chilled Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hyndman's Featherland Wildlife Gardens Monday.

Dr. Archibald is a nine-year-old, three-foot alligator whose metabolism can't stand exposure to Canadian winters.

No Mrs. Hyndman spent the day warming pans of water atop an oil-fired space heater, then pouring it over her chilly alligator.

The Hyndmans went to bed with more than a dozen trained birds in their bedroom. Altogether, about 40 of their 150 birds were given the shelter of their home during Monday's snowstorm.

"We're in terrible straits,"

said Mrs. Hyndman Monday evening. "Our candles are down to almost nothing."

Like many other residents of West Burnside, they were without power all day after the heavy snow of the morning.

Mr. Hyndman sought help from B.C. Hydro after splicing his fallen phone line, but crews were unable to reach their home yesterday.

More flurries of wet snow were forecast for today as masses of warm and cold air continued skirmishing over southern Vancouver Island.

Outlying areas were hard hit by widespread power failures, the chief trouble brought by the storm. For most people it amounted to inconvenience; others, notably dairy farmers, found themselves in serious trouble without electricity to run their machines.

FARMERS HIT

While thousands of capital residents made do with cold meals through the day, dairy farmers along West Burnside Road and adjacent areas grew desperate over the plight of their cattle.

The farmers were unable to pump water. Lacking power for milking machines, they were also unable to cope with milking hundreds of cows.

Victoria's storm was mild by comparison with what hit the upper Island. But even so, it set its own record.

OLD MARK

The official measurement of 8.3 inches became the heaviest recorded fall for a 24-hour period in December. The old mark was 8 inches, set in 1943.

Beginning around midnight, it first greeted district roads with slush, then choked them as the night wore on.

By early morning, when overloaded trees and branches began giving way, scores of power failures occurred.

Despite many outages in urban Victoria, the blizzard was borne by residents in thickly wooded outlying areas, where lines were more vulnerable.

COLD TURKEY

From Colwood through to Sooke, Jordan River and Port Renfrew, thousands of Christmas trees winked out. Fireplaces were lit and cold turkey became universal fare.

The Saanich Peninsula shivered through most of the day. Neighbors occasionally moved in with one another, wherever an oil heater could stand in for a dead oil furnace.

B.C. Hydro explained a typical outage this way:

NEW POWER

A heavy - loaded branch cracked and fell, bouncing off a power line below. The snaking line touched a parallel wire momentarily, sending a short-circuit surging through the system and blowing fuses at safety points.

When the outage was reported, traced and corrected, new power poured through the system. But most lights and outlets on the circuit had been turned on to await the restoration of power.

The overloaded circuit promptly blew its fuses again. This pattern was repeated in many areas, said the B.C. Hydro spokesman.

WORST DAYS

"This is one of the worst days for many years," he said.

The authority was swamped with calls. Many residents called all day but were unable to get through on the office's six lines.

By nightfall only East Sooke and Port Renfrew were still without power.

Vatican Tries Hard To Interest Hanoi

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Vatican diplomats were reported Monday negotiating under orders from Pope Paul to bring about a new year's ceasefire in Viet Nam.

Some reports said contact already had been made between papal envoys and representatives of North Viet Nam in Cambodia. The Vatican has an apostolic delegate to the Roman Catholic hierarchy there.

Another possible channel was through Hungary.

Informants said Vatican diplomats had been instructed in the wake of the Christmas ceasefire experiment to step up their secret contacts with both sides in the Viet Nam war.

Pope Paul was disappointed that the Christmas ceasefire he had appealed for was so short-lived.

NEW EFFORTS

But both the Roman Catholic pontiff and his top diplomatic advisers were said to feel that, even so, the Pope's appeal had achieved some results and that new efforts were called for.

It was not indicated whether the Pope planned another public appeal for a specific ceasefire for New Year's as he had done Dec. 19 for the Christmas truce.

SECRET MOVE

Source said it was possible that this time the proposals would be kept strictly within secret diplomatic channels.

The Vatican has no direct diplomatic relations with North Viet Nam. But informants report that Vatican diplomats have indirect channels to Hanoi.

WORKING TIE

There is speculation that one channel is by way of Hungary, where the Vatican has had working ties with the Budapest regime since September, 1964.

An accord was reached there enabling Pope Paul to appoint a number of bishops in Hungary without a vote in the Holy See. At the same time Archbishop Andre Hamvas was named president of the Hungarian episcopate to represent the Roman Catholic Church in dealings with the country's Communist regime in the absence of any papal nuncio.

Informants said that far from

Bomb Lull Enters Fourth Day

SAIGON (AP)—The suspension in the air war against North Viet Nam continued into the fourth day today, a U.S. spokesman announced.

On the ground, however, U.S. Marines killed 63 Viet Cong in scattered fighting near the Da Nang Air Base Monday.

The U.S. spokesman said at 1 p.m. (12 midnight EST Monday) that no orders had been received from Washington to resume bombing of the Communist north. He declined to comment further.

The marines reported taking only light casualties in the skirmishes that flared around the big base 380 miles northeast of Saigon. Ground actions elsewhere in South Viet Nam were proving costly to both Americans and South Vietnamese.

Heat Kills 135 Children

SAO PAULO (Reuters)—Intestinal and other disorders, caused by Brazil's most intense heat wave this century, have killed 135 children here this month, health officials announced Monday.

Any Hanoi Response?

Nothing Noteworthy On Air Strike Halt

WASHINGTON (AP)—The state department found nothing noteworthy Monday in Hanoi's response so far to the latest halt in U.S. air strikes on North Viet Nam.

Last May Washington ordered a five-day pause in the bombing to see whether this would produce peace feelers. U.S. officials said then they got only a harsh reaction from Hanoi.

With the current lull in the U.S.-South Vietnamese air raids on the North in its fourth day—counting the Christmas truce period—a state department press officer was asked about the response from North Viet Nam.

The message, in a letter from Archbishop Egidio Vagnozzi, apostolic delegate to Washington, said the Pope had shown his satisfaction with the truce by sending a special message to the governments of South and North Viet Nam exhorting each to do everything possible to bring about a just and peaceful solution.

State department sources said the spokesman included the 24-hour reference in his answer to take into account Communist charges of U.S.-South Vietnamese truce violations. They said there have been no peace soundings from the Communist side at any time since Friday.

In Austin, Tex., acting press secretary, Joseph Laitin was asked whether the U.S. had instituted a new pause in the bombing. "I have no information whatsoever on that," he replied.

Laitin said Johnson received an indirect message Monday from Pope Paul expressing pleasure over the Christmas truce in Viet Nam.

"I know of no noteworthy comment from Hanoi on any subject affecting Viet Nam within the last 24 to 36 hours," he replied.

State department sources said the spokesman included the 24-hour reference in his answer to take into account Communist charges of U.S.-South Vietnamese truce violations.

Laitin said Johnson felt the message didn't require a reply.
